RED CROSS BOMBING DECLARED AN "UTTERLY DELIBERATE ACT"

MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

ROOSEVELT REITERATES PEACE POLICY

TASK OF TWO-FOLD NEUTRALITY

"COURAGEOUS" OR "CHEAP POLITICAL CLAPTRAP"?

Washington, Yesterday.
A vigorous challenge to his opponents to come out openly with proposals for the repeal of the "New Deal" measures, instead of hiding under the cowardly cloak of generality, was made by President Roosevelt in his annual message to Congress, which was broadcast throughout the nation last night.

President Roosevelt urged Congress to continue wholeheartedly the war on vested interests, which now that the immediate danger of economic collapse had been averted, repented of their abdication in the panic days of 1933 and were turning savagely to rend the "New Deal" policies.

TWO-FOLD NEUTRALITY
He deplored the reversion to the old belief in the law of the sword, and declared that the United States has sought earnestly and consistently for peace. Since the summer of 1933 the temper and purposes of the rulers of many great populations in Europe and Asia did not point the way either to peace or goodwill among men, but the point had been reached where the people of the Americas must take cognizance of the growing illwill marked by trends towards aggression, increasing armaments and the shortening of tempers—a situation which in its many elements was leading to tragedy and general war.

CONSISTENT POLICY
The policy of the United States had been clear and consistent. "We have sought with earnestness every possible way in which to limit world armaments and attain a peaceful solution of the disputes among all the nations. In the field of commerce we have undertaken to encourage a more reasonable interchange of the world's goods."

"In the field of international finance we have, as far as we ourselves have been concerned, put an end to dollar diplomacy, money grabbing and speculation which benefit only the powerful and rich at the expense of the small and poor."

"As a consistent part of her clear policy the United States is following a clear task of two-fold neutrality towards any and all nations engaging in war which is no immediate concern of America's."

Firstly, we decline to encourage the prosecution of war by permitting the belligerents to obtain arms, ammunition or implements of war from the United States.

Secondly, we seek to discourage the use by the belligerents of any nations of any and all American products calculated to facilitate the prosecution of war, in quantities over and above our normal exports to them in peace time."

REACTIONS TO ADDRESS

Washington, Yesterday.
President Roosevelt's speech was broadcast throughout the nation. He spoke for nearly an hour in slow, measured tones, and was greeted with a renewed burst of cheering at the finish. His sharp words to the autocratic rulers in Europe and Asia were received in deep silence.

The message to Congress of President Roosevelt, above, has had a very mixed reception in the press and public opinion, comments ranging from "courageous" to "cheap political claptrap."

BANDITS ON EXPRESS

Attempt To Hold Up Train Near Luanchow

SHOTS EXCHANGED WITH GENDARMES

Peiping, Yesterday.

Three Chinese bandits, traveling as passengers, attempted to hold up the Peiping-Mukden express near Luanchow yesterday. Japanese gendarmes intervened and shots were exchanged. The bandits leapt from the moving train and escaped. A Japanese gendarme and five Chinese passengers were injured, two of the latter seriously.

Tientsin, later: The bandits mentioned in the Peiping message are alleged to have been East Hopei militiamen, who wanted the express to disembark them at a station where it does not stop. An altercation about the matter led to the firing.—Reuter.

BIG BIRTHDAY PARTY

Given By General Chen

STEP-MOTHER HONOURED

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday.

Consular officials from Shaoen and their wives had a taste of the best sharks' fins and birds' nests when they attended the big party last night given by General Chen Chi-tang, local military chief, at the Air Force Club, Tungshan, in honour of the 70th birthday of his step-mother.

All ranking civil and military officials were given early yesterday morning to offer their congratulations and respects to the senior Madam Chen in the General's mansion at Plum Blossom Village. To keep out "gate-crashers," visitors were admitted only by badges.

The most expensive motor-cars were seen at Model Blossom Village, do luxe residential suburb for rich officials and foreigners. Special guards and gendarmes with Mauser pistols drawn were posted at the Chen estate, to give the necessary protection. Madam Chen and her five sons had a very busy day receiving almost 1,000 callers.

January 3 was also a lucky day for 500 beggars who journeyed in the early morning from all parts of the city to the Chen mansion to offer their congratulations. They remained only at the doors and each received one dollar. Later, 2,000 more arrived and were given 40 cents each.

GRAPHIC ACCOUNT GIVEN BY DR. HYLANDER

"I SAW THE MOST TERRIBLE SCENE OF CARNAGE IMAGINABLE"

PERFECT TORNADO OF BOMBS AND BULLETS

Addis Ababa, Yesterday.

"It was an utterly deliberate act," declared Dr. Hylander, when indignantly describing the Red Cross bombing in an exclusive interview with Reuter's special correspondent at Addis Ababa, Mr. Collins, upon his arrival here from the southern front by aeroplane, accompanied by Dr. Eric Smith, another Swedish doctor who was also wounded.

For several days before the bombing, said Dr. Hylander, Italian aeroplanes fired with machine-guns all round the ambulance. "On the morning of the bombing," he said, "I was in the operating theatre, when a perfect tornado of bombs and machine-gun bullets suddenly rained down upon us."

Dr. Hylander continued: "I had just time to see two lines of three planes each enfilading the ambulance when I was hit and lost consciousness. When I opened my eyes again I saw the most terrible scene of carnage imaginable. Scores of dead, dying and wounded lay around us, amid the shrieks and groans of the wounded and the crackle of blazing tents."

ANOTHER AMBULANCE BOMBED

Five Planes Reported To Have Participated

Addis Ababa, Yesterday.
An Egyptian Red Crescent Ambulance at Daggabur and a fortified Abyssinian outpost on the southern front have been bombed by Italian planes, according to an unconfirmed rumour in circulation here. It is reported that five planes participated in the bombing. The casualties are not known.—Reuter.

DUM-DUM BULLET MYTH EXPLODED

ITALIAN CHARGE STRONGLY DENIED BY BRITISH FIRM

Geneva, Yesterday.

Continuing its polemic against the alleged use of dum-dum bullets by the Abyssinians, the Italian Government has handed in several photographs to the League Secretariat, which are intended to prove that the Abyssinian troops have employed dum-dum bullets and explosive of British manufacture. One photograph shows the label from a case in which the bullets are said to have been found, and which bears the name of Eley Brothers, Ltd., London.

It will be recalled that Sir Harry McGowan, chairman of Imperial Chemical Industries, of which firm Eley Brothers is now a subsidiary, on his attention being called to the same photographs as produced in an Italian paper, stated that the label in question was not issued by Eley Brothers after 1914, so that the cartridges must have been issued not less than 20 years ago.

FOR BIG GAME SHOOTING
Ammunition of this type, added Sir Harry, was required for big game shooting, for which rifles of a military type are often used. He concluded therefore that the cartridges, if the Italian statements be true, were sold for this purpose by Eley Brothers 22 years ago, and had somehow found their way into the hands of the Abyssinians. He denied categorically that dum-dum ammunition had ever been supplied by the firm in question for military purposes.—Trans-Ocean Service.

FRANCO-SOVIET AGREEMENT RENEWED

Paris, Yesterday.—A Franco-Soviet trade agreement has been renewed, renewing the 1934 agreement with certain modifications.—Reuter.

COMPLAINT TO LEAGUE

Soviet Charge Against Uruguay

Geneva, Yesterday.

A Soviet note to the League complains that Uruguay has committed a breach of the Covenant in connection with the rupturing of relations, inasmuch as Article XII provides that States must submit disputes to arbitration or judicial settlement.

M. Litvinoff asks that the question of irregularity be placed on the Council's agenda for the meeting on January 20.—Reuter.

Other Cables on Abyssinia will be found on page 9.

HELPING NATIONAL DEBT

London, Yesterday.—Lord Dalziel has left the bulk of his fortune of £400,000 to the National Debt Redemption Fund.—Reuter.

A new portrait of Signor Benito Mussolini, Dictator of Italy, who can hardly evade responsibility for plunging his country into a disastrous war.

JAPANESE IN AUSTRALIA

Incident On Coast Of Queensland

UNAUTHORISED IMMIGRANTS

Melbourne, Yesterday.

In consequence of statements that a party of Japanese landed on the North Queensland coast and molested holiday-makers and insulted some women, Mr. J. Patterson, the Federal Minister of Interior, is obtaining an immediate report on what he regards as the most serious aspect of the matter, the case with which prohibited immigrants can enter Australia.

The two patrol launches now being built are considered insufficient to prevent a recurrence of the incident, and it is believed likely that the Commonwealth will ask Japan to deal with any of her nationals who without authorisation land in Australia.—Reuter.

STUDENTS STILL OBDURATE

ANOTHER MARCH ON NANKING

CLASSES HELD UP AT PEIPING

Peiping, Yesterday.

The universities did not resume their classes to-day after the New Year holiday. Almost all the students absented themselves and pickets turned away the very few who appeared.

The student union has decided to send another group of pilgrims to Nanking. Some 200 students who left on foot from Tientsin yesterday plan to join the two Peiping groups near Nanking for the final march on the capital.—Reuter.

WAR FEVER PREVAILS

GREECE MAKES PREPARATIONS

Dodecanese Islands Fortified

EIGHTEEN WARSHIPS SENT TO LAKI

Athens, Yesterday.

Extensive military preparations, including new fortifications, the construction of military roads and the provision of large supplies of food and military stores, are reported to be proceeding in the Dodecanese Islands.

Some 9,000 troops are stated to be concentrated on Leros Island. They are described as well equipped and organised. Numbers of new batteries have been sent to the island, and most of them are placed in position at Pantali, St. Marina, Laki and Alameda. Eighteen warships, including five submarines and many aircraft, are concentrated at Laki.

It is stated that there will be combined fleet and air manoeuvres on January 21 between the islands of Leros, Stampalia and Calymnos. Labourers from all the islands are engaged in military road construction on the island of Leros, which is reported to be fortified and interwoven with military roads, which are heavily guarded. There are sufficient military stores on the island to last a year.—Reuter.

PROBLEMS OF REFUGEES

REPORT TO LEAGUE PENDING

GRAVEST CONDITIONS IN FRANCE

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

London, Yesterday.

Commenting on the letter of resignation addressed to the League of Nations Secretariat by Mr. James Macdonald, High Commissioner for Refugees from Germany, published in the News Letter, Mr. Matthews states that large as the number of Jewish refugees from Germany might be, there is little doubt that the question involved is not so great as the figures may indicate.

Referring to the fate of 800,000 Russians who were compelled to leave their country after the Russian revolution, the article emphasises that while the Nansen office has undoubtedly done much to alleviate their distress, one could not very well speak of the problem having been "definitely solved. The League of Nations, moreover, is responsible for the fate of 170,000 Armenians, and no permanent home has as yet been found for between 25,000 and 40,000 Assyrians who left Iraq after the massacres of 1933-34.

As regards emigrants from the Saar territory, the special responsibility of France appears to be evident, according to the writer, since the latter country had done much to support the agitation for the maintenance of the status quo in the Saar region.

GRAVEST PROBLEM

The fate of those refugees who have already settled in France and elsewhere and who, after losing their homes are now faced by the danger of being expelled, presents by far the gravest problem, in the opinion of the writer, who stresses that the recent enquiry revealed the tragic and alarming

HONG KONG AND THE NEW TERRITORIES. — No. 188.

ON Saturday week a day was spent in the Territories. A small fire was quickly lit and a halt was made before Tai Po to eggs appeared like magic from a capacious bag, and we presently admired the autumn colours which were at their best and as grand as I can remember them. Liquidambar formosana took pride of place, large trees of a variety of tints: golden yellow, amber, orange and orange-reds predominated. A patch of trees of Sapindus discolor, deep red, almost purple in hue, stood out boldly in the sunlight against the deep green of the pines and occasional trees of Rhus succedanea provided splashes of scarlet. Near the road were, in places, trees of Sapindus sebiferum, the tallow-tree, with foliage like that of a poplar, which were beginning to change, some branches being red or orange, others purple and green. Amongst the undergrowth were vivid patches of orange vermillion, the leaves of Rhus hypoleuca. These five species provided by far the majority of the bright colours, most of the other trees being different shades of green.

Sha-tau-kok District

At Fanling we turned and followed the Sha-tau-kok road for nearly two miles, stopping opposite a little wood 200 yards beyond the village of Kwan Ti Tuen, on the outskirts of which we had lunch. The botanical find of the day was a large robust plant of a Clematis species in bud. I am at the moment interested in this genus and am growing a number of species both of local origin and from Japan, Singapore and Indo-China. This species had large buds covered with a brown tomentum. A few days later, investigation in the herbarium at the Botanic Gardens showed it to be Clematis filamentos, originally described by Dunn from Ha Hang, which is 3½ miles almost due south of Tam Chuk Hang, where I found the plant. Open flowers measure something like two inches across so it is a species which should be in cultivation, and as it

CORRESPONDENCE

Concerning Art

(To The Editor, "Sunday Herald")
Sir,—I have noted with interest the question "Why is Epstein's 'Genesis' a masterpiece?" put forward by Eoyore.

Evidently Eoyore has not yet understood clearly the fundamental principles of Art. To begin with, he should know that Art gives one pleasure, or rather it gives one thrill and excitement and makes one admire it more and more as time advances. "Art," says Sir Alfred East, "is not a dead thing, it is ever and never will be; it is the living fact of man's vitality; it approaches the divine inasmuch as it is a creation; it takes from Nature the inert and brings them together that, by the touch of its finger, it becomes a living and breathing thing." In short, art is spiritual.

From what I can gather Eoyore has said, he is under the wrong impression that the quality of Art should be beauty instead of spirit, life and vitality, which is the very essence of art and which makes it a permanent creation of the world; and not until he perceives this latter quality out of 'Genesis' will he realise any value or "beauty" at all.

Speaking of beauty, there is in fact no criterion in Art in the sense that a charming lady has "beautiful curves, beautiful lines and a beautiful appearance." If we study "The Dwarf" by Valasquez, we are at once in despair to seek what is called "beauty" on account of the deformity of the subject. Yet this portrait is proclaimed by Herbert Furst, the eminent critic, as "a beautiful painting of great psychological value and objective truth." Thus it can clearly be seen that it all depends on whether or not the original approach is right.

The same thing also applies to Epstein's 'Genesis.' Therefore the reason "why all the critics became almost hysterical with ecstasy when 'Genesis' was given to the world" is not difficult to seek, provided the ordinary critic (Continued at Foot of Next Col.)

In the only January-flowering clematis in the Colony this adds its value. Professor Chun has found the same species in Kwangtung, and it has also been found at Fanling. The filaments of the stamens are much prolonged and it is the only local species with this feature.

Twenty-six different species of birds were identified, but nothing unusual. A fine male blackbird flew across in front of us just before lunch, but though other thrushes were heard none were seen. Pigeons, wagtails and bulbuls were abundant, a common sandpiper was feeding in a flooded paddy field along with a white-faced wagtail. A little kingfisher hovered for an incredible length of time over a small pool, but flew away without diving. A Fokien pond heron was noticed and a Japanese buzzard high in the sky, but no other bird of prey save the ubiquitous kite. In the wood, by our luncheon site, a large lesser rat snake, Pityopsis korra, was exposed its whole length in a sunny patch—we watched it glide swiftly away. Later in the day a recently killed water snake, Natix piceator was also noted.

teria of beauty" are not mistaken as the most important quality Art demands. The fact that Sickert's work is unappreciated does not, as Eoyore thinks, lie in its subject or treatment, still less in chiaroscuro (which Sickert has never achieved in the sense that Rembrandt and Constable have mastered chiaroscuro—a term for perfect light and dark tone values) but on the spirit through which the subject is expressed; while the sculpture of Rodin is valued for his feeling—I nearly said poetical feeling—and thought as, for instance, in the case of his "Thinker."

I think Eoyore should consider if he really feels any of the qualities spoken of above of Sickert and Rodin, whose work he professes to understand so much, before he considers the question of whether Epstein's 'Genesis' has any quality at all. If he does not feel any such qualities in the case of Sickert and Rodin beyond what he has maintained, I am afraid he is incapable—or better still, "spirit-blind"—and no explanation "in plain, two-syllabled words" will make him perceive any spirit in 'Genesis' which is outside his province of taste; and in that case he had better be content that "only the artistic elite can recognise a masterpiece when they see one."

In conclusion, I lay no claim to explain why Epstein's 'Genesis' is a masterpiece beyond pointing out to Eoyore the most important quality he should seek in a work of art in general, and in 'Genesis' in particular, which incidentally is what I have written about time and again, only in a different manner.

SHORT STORY

An Invitation To Dinner

DERICK Quinn was a young man with ideals and illusions about women, about love in a cottage, about being loved for himself alone. He was a country doctor with his way to make, a very long way thought Mrs. Muzzerhomer whose daughter Elsa he sometimes imagined would look well in that cottage he so often dreamed about.

Now, Mrs. Muzzerhomer and three daughters, and she had spent a great deal of time and money on these daughters, and everyone declared they were a great credit to her. Whether they were not quite so modern as they looked, or whether it was they were clever enough to bow to superior judgment, they always brought their men-friends home for Mrs. Muzzerhomer's inspection. And Mrs. Muzzerhomer, after inspecting the young men, always said the same thing, that she sympathetically believed a woman earning her own money was a really independent of poor young men.

Elsa Muzzerhomer earned her living by playing in the Municipal Orchestra and Derick Quinn developed a passion for music, especially when he came to town. He was a very persevering young man, because very rarely was he asked inside the Muzzerhomer stronghold and when he was he was never displayed with the same pride by Elsa, as Agnes, who was a dancer, radiated when she came home with Mr. H. K. Wrentmore, a theatrical manager who left the latest thing in sports cars standing in the road before the house.

Derick in his innocence often wondered why Mrs. Muzzerhomer always offered Mr. H. K. Wrentmore the most comfortable chair in the room, while she left him to fend for himself; why she always marshalled all forces against him in any discussion; why she always acted contemptuously towards all his opinions on the theatre, music and books.

Let it be said here, Mrs. Muzzerhomer was a very cultured woman; she insisted upon being a cultured woman, and very few people had the courage to disagree with her on any topic she might care to discuss.

Even Elsa deserted Derick in her own home, and left him to flounder in and out as best he could. Usually he was reduced to silence, as Mr. H. K. Wrentmore, who smoked expensive cigars and took it for granted that Derick did not, invariably monopolised the conversation, which centred round the shows that had been on the week before, when Derick had not been in town. And somehow when he decided that he must be going, Mrs. Muzzerhomer was writing a letter. It must have been a very important letter, because she did not stop to speak to Derick or his friend, but left them to stare about them till Elsa appeared a half hour later. Then Mrs. Muzzerhomer rose and walked to the door with them, cautioning Elsa not to be late. Arriving in the doorway, she looked down upon the road and beheld the new car. She looked hard, all her interest for the moment focussed on the car, then, turning to John Durant, she said with her most gracious smile:

"You must come and see us again, Mr.—"

"Durant," said John and he smiled knowingly at Derick, who stood by wrapped in wonderment at this sudden invitation to his friend.

"Ah yes, Mr. Durant," said Mrs. Muzzerhomer, then her affability turned on its axis, shone on the car below for a moment, swept deliberately past Derick and came to rest again on John. "Yes," she said, "We'll be pleased to see you any evening, won't we, Elsa?" and she pulled Elsa to her affectionately, who sighed, "Oh, very."

Her eyes wandered back to the car, sweeping it swiftly from maroon to luggage carrier, and with her eyes still fixating it, she added, "Come soon."

By then, they had reached the top of the steps and Mrs. Muzzerhomer saw the car in all its glory. The sun streaming brightly on it, showed up its grey leather upholstery, its shiny fittings, its long, low lines.

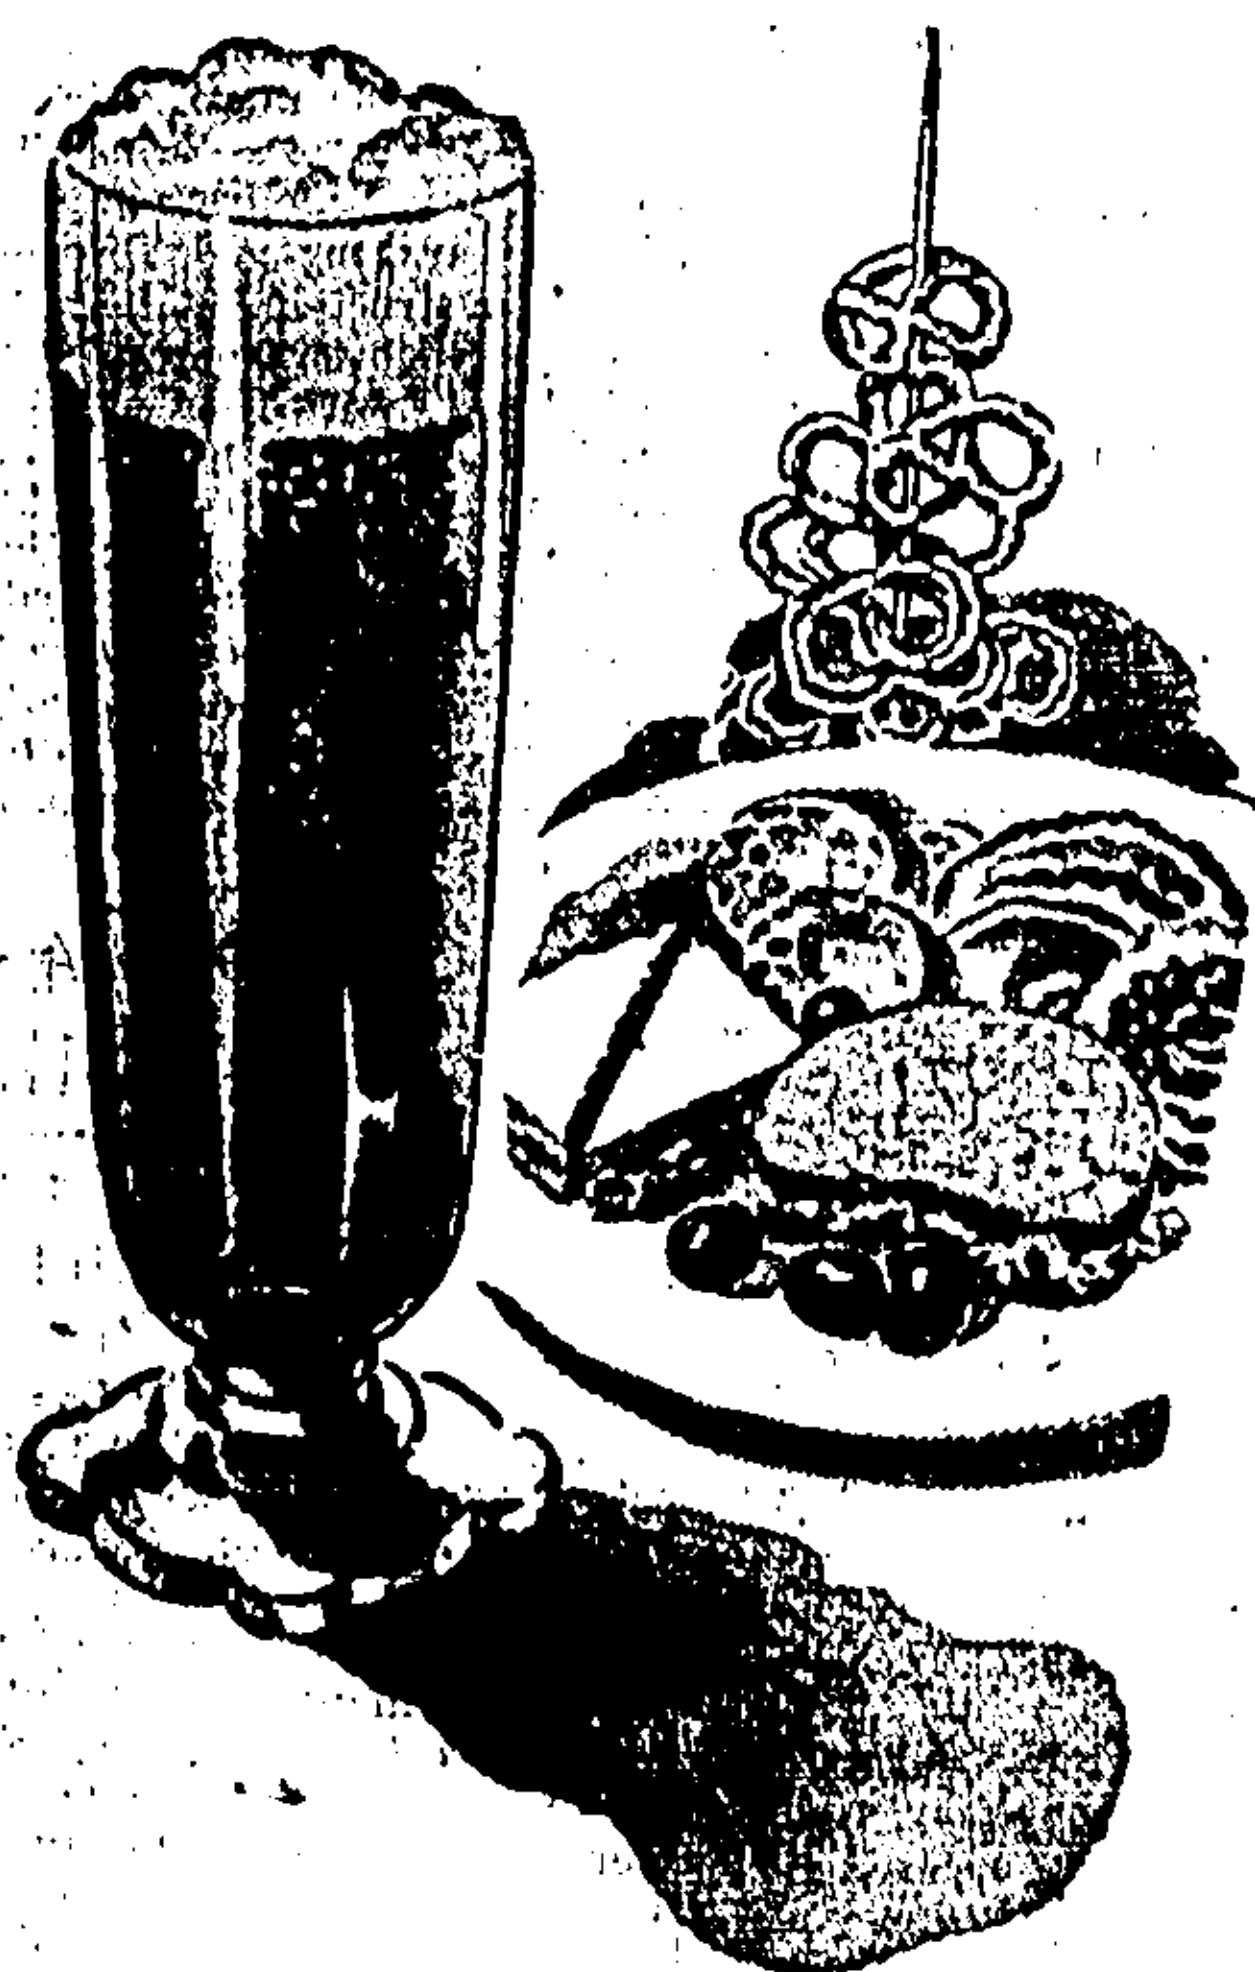

"Five hundred pounds or more," she thoughtfully calculated, then turning to John, "Come to dinner," she said, generously bestowing on him the freedom of the Muzzerhomer stronghold. Another pause, another glance, then laying a motherly hand upon his shoulder she coaxed, "Come tonight—now do."

"Thank you," said John lighting a cigarette and glancing mischievously at the dazed Derick, "I will, one."

Mrs. Muzzerhomer beamed radiantly on him. "Ah, that's right!" she exclaimed. Then she looked lovingly at the car. "I see you've got the latest, Dr. Luckin. Tilted back his head, for a moment John watched with amusement the fast awakening Derick, then grinning broadly through a soft veil of smoke he said, "Oh, I'm not the lucky owner. It's Dr. Quinn's."

Vionnet-fashion. Slender medieval frocks, held at the waist by jewelled belts, heighten the romantic air of many a girl. Those grand new evening wraps of gold made on sport-coat lines never fail to bring out comments of approval.

Everywhere there is the faint perfume of flowers, emanating from the fresh blossoms which girls are fastening in their hair.

Carnation-Colour

At a recent opening a striking brunette was seen wearing a gown of black lace; her coat was full length and of that velvety dark red carnation shade that one associates with heavy silks and Godey prints. Fastened on her glossy black hair, about two inches from her forehead, were three carnations. She was a picture.

Among the new clothes in the shops waiting for the forthcoming events, such as the National Horse Show ball, the first nights sponsored by social groups for prominent charities and the opening of new night clubs, are the exciting ones illustrated on this page.

The metals seem to grow continuously more beautiful; now they are being pleated. The latest dance frocks are made with sunburst skirts. Just how resplendent such a frock is you can judge for yourself from the sketch.

Pleated lame also is used for the short swinging jacket and for the top of an ensemble of which the skirt is amethyst crepe. The bodice suggests Greek drapery and is finished at the shoulders with bands of gold stitched in the Greek key pattern. No matter what gaily-crowded restaurant one goes into this winter, at least 30 per cent. of the best-dressed women are wearing little jackets. They have them under their fur wraps and keep them on for a while at the table, then throw them off while they dance, thus adding a dramatic sparkle to their appearance.

Imagine going to the theatre in the Persian-red and gray ensemble illustrated, keeping the jacket on during the performance and the early part of supper, and then throwing it off to show the cool freshness of the grey crepe dress, with its slightly draped shoulders and deep V décolletage!

Sophisticated White

Once upon a time white was considered terribly jeune fille. That belongs to the day of chaperons. So afraid have the young been of looking S. S. and G. that they have sought refuge in the sophistication of black, leaving white for their elders. White, this season, is ageless. Behold it here with silver brocade in a gown for the dignified and in ivory satin for the willowy younger set.

When colours are used they are strong and warm. There are vibrant reds and rich greens (see the sketches in the lower left-hand corner). If gowns are dark, wraps in startling contrast may be worn, and vice versa. Nearly all wraps touch the floor. Short ones are in the majority, and are chiefly seen as part of an ensemble.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

THE ancients thought that it was possible to read both the character and the fortune of a person by an ingenious system of giving numerical values to each letter of their names.

These name-fortunes are based on the old Pythagorean method of numbering the letters of the alphabet and also taking into account the astrological values assigned to them.

ROSEMARY

Symbol: A love token.

THIS name signifies thoughtfulness, sympathy, deep and sincere feelings. Your lucky day is Sunday, and your lucky hours are noon and 8 p.m. for all things personal to yourself. The luckiest day of the month is the 22nd. Your lucky stone is the ruby; it dispels love troubles. The fragrant plant that bears your name is in sympathetic relationship with you, and so is the pansy.

Blue of the deep forget-me-not shade is your most harmonious colour, and should certainly be used in your surroundings.

The numbers four and nine are both lucky for you. Next week: Elizabeth.

THE ROOM WITHOUT SUNSHINE

"OH, we use this as a store room—it gets no sun, you see." How often one hears such remarks when being shown over a friend's home. How true of nearly everyone's home—even your own.

No matter how perfectly planned a place may be, there is generally one room that is dark and desolate, and consequently used as a family junk room.

If you have a gloomy room that you wish to put to practical use, here are a few simple remedies:—First, have your walls and woodwork coloured a light cream—using a glossy paint on the woodwork. If you have a fitted carpet—see that it isn't a neutral or drab shade—have it a warm or even vivid colour. If on the other hand you prefer rugs, stain the bare floor and polish it until it has a mirror-like surface.

Next, place as much bright metal about the room as possible. Substitute simple antique brass doornobs and locks for existing plain ones, and give a pair of brass candlesticks a place of honour on your mantelpiece.

Place flowers, cape gooseberries or other bright berries in brass bowls where they catch the light. Your curtains may be gay and giddy in design, or a clear plain colour—but be sure you keep away from blue, which is a cold colour.

BEAUTY DIARY

By

ESTHER

WHEN YOU'RE FEELING PLAIN

AS every woman knows, faces have their "off" days, just as, for no particular reason, they suddenly blossom into great good looks. Not every woman, however, realises that it is cruelty to faces to try to cover their sorrowful "hang-over" with rouge and powder without first giving them the kind of pick-me-up which on these occasions is indicated.

Take a thick pad of cotton-wool. Wring out in cold water and soak the pad in a mixture of one part eau de Cologne and three parts rosewater. Run the pad quickly over the face and neck, starting with the base of the throat.

Spread a coat of feeding cream over the skin and lie down flat on the bed or on a couch. Massage with firm strokes upwards from the throat, using a fan-like movement over the face. Flick rather than stroke the skin, with a quick "whippy" rhythm.

Wipe off surplus cream with face tissues. Smooth on a muscle oil upon whose powers you know you can rely, and, still lying flat, pat the oil into the skin with the fingertips. Wipe off surplus oil.

Fill a basin with warm water. Take a cake of good quality facial soap or a nursery soap and a complexion brush (a round-headed toothbrush with medium soft bristles will do instead of the complexion brush), and work up a good lather on the brush.

Start at the base of the neck and "brush" the skin, using small rotary movements, and pressing the bristles against the skin so that the skin is not dragged or stretched. Brush until the circulation starts moving: in other words, until the face tingles and glows.

Rinse, first in tepid water, then in cold. If you have a refrigerator, you can give your skin (now happily convalescent) an ice "tie-up," which I can assure you it will much appreciate.

Seak a thick strip of cotton-wool in iced water and strap it under the chin with the aid of a strip of linen long enough to tie or pin on top of the head. Take a bowl of iced water, a square of cotton-wool, and a cube of ice to your bedside.

Rest Again

Wring out the cotton-wool in the water and cover the face with the square, fitting it snugly down under the chin-strap. Rub the ice-cube over the cotton-wool until the cold penetrates to the skin. Then lie down again, but this time with the feet raised on the pillows, a hard cushion in the small of the back, and the head slightly hanging over the side of the bed. Stay completely relaxed for ten minutes.

When the strappings are removed, turn to your mirror once more, this time in the knowledge that your make-up will "go on" perfectly.

EASY TO MAKE RECIPES

Chocolate Nuts should prove popular. Dissolve a few sticks of chocolate in not more than one or two tablespoons of water or coffee. Put any kind of shelled nuts on a dish and pour the chocolate over them. When set, wrap each in silver paper.

Nougatine au Moka are another delicious sweet made with nuts. Chop finely or put through a mincer lib. of blanched and skinned cob nuts and 2oz. of shelled walnuts; mix with 6oz. of castor sugar. When reduced to a paste, flavour with a few drops of coffee essence or very strong coffee. Mix thoroughly, roll the paste into small balls and coat with castor sugar.

POLICE AND CLUB SHARE TWO GOALS IN DISAPPOINTING GAME

RECREIO WIN FUSILIERS OUTPLAYED IN FAST GAME

BELTRAO SCORES
THREE TIMES

TALBOT OUTSTANDING

The Recreio beat the Fusiliers by 3 goals to 1 in the First Division at King's Park yesterday.

It was a deserving success for the "Recreio", because they displayed a better type of football than was shown by the military team, inasmuch as they always played to keep the ball low, a policy which paved the way to a very successful conclusion. In contrast to the methods of the Recreio with their fast open play and long, sweeping ground passes, the Fusiliers were much too inclined to crowd one another, but their chief fault was the frequency with which they lifted the ball into the air.

Recreio's Three Goals

Quite against the run of play, the scoring was opened by the Recreio, six minutes from the commencement. A swift raid saw Wheeler head down into the middle of the goal for Beltrao to leave Rowlands helpless.

Inspired by their success the Recreio literally swept through the Fusilier defence to add their second point, Castilleho completing a lightning-like move with a splendid centre to Beltrao, who gave Rowlands no chance. Playing to excellent purpose, the "Recreio" delighted their supporters with their quick movements and showing masterly combination, they quite deservedly added to their total when Beltrao again found the net.

After the interval the Fusiliers showed to better advantage and after 18 minutes Conkley hooked the ball into the side of the net. Rowland then distinguished himself when he made a great save from Beltrao, picking the ball off the opposing leader's toe on the very goal line.

In a great victory for the Recreio, only four men stood out with any degree of prominence in the Fusiliers team, Conkley, Harrison, Wanklyn and Talbot, with the last mentioned outstanding. A. V. Gosano played a fine game in the centre-half berth, being mainly responsible for subduing the strong Fusilier attack. All five forwards were in good form, B. Gosano and Alves forming a dangerous wing. In the defence J. Alves and Silva met the Fusilier forwards with confidence, and Marques was a sound 'keeper.

ULSTER RIFLES TROUTED

NO MATCH FOR
NAVY JUNIORS

The R. Ulster Rifles made their debut in the Second Division yesterday and lost to the Navy by six goals to nil at Sookunpoo.

After 15 minutes of good soccer, the Ulsters seemed to lose ground and the second-half saw a very one-sided display. Had it not been for the brilliant work of McMorris in goal, the result would have been a bigger win for the Navy.

After 20 minutes McMorris mis-kicked in attempting a clearance, and Wride, the Navy inside-left, opened the scoring with an oblique shot.

The Navy attacked at the commencement of the second half and Spencer, at centre-forward, received from Wride to make no mistake. Two minutes later the same player gave the Navy their third goal with a shot from close quarters.

Wride sent the sailors further ahead with a beautiful shot, and, following a short melee in the Ulsters' goalmouth, Gould, at inside-right, scored the sailors' final goal.

AIR FORCE-CHINESE POLICE FIXTURE POSTPONED

The Third Division soccer encounter, between the Royal Air Force and The Chinese Police was postponed yesterday owing to the non-appearance of the referee.

SOUTH CHINA "B" KEEP UNBEATEN RECORD BUT NAVY WERE UNLUCKY

SOUTH CHINA "B" retained their unbeaten record when they defeated the Navy yesterday afternoon at Causeway Bay by 3 goals to 1 after a keen game which was full of thrills.

BOYES DEFIES ATHLETIC

Brilliant Display
In Goal

In their First Division football encounter against the Athletic yesterday at Caroline Hill, Kowloon were exceedingly fortunate to be defeated by only one goal. For the greater part of the game they were completely outclassed, and it was only a spectacular display by Boyes that prevented their defeat from being much heavier.

In addition to the play of Boyes, the outstanding features of the game were the opportunities missed by Chow Man-chi, the clever manoeuvring of Tang Kwong-sum, and the accuracy with which the Chinese defence fed their forwards.

During the second half, a fine run down the wing by Tang Kwong-sum and a pass to Au Ping-min, who was standing unmarked in the vicinity of the penalty-spot, resulted in the only goal of the match.

Among the Kowloon forwards, only Knox showed any thrust. The defence was none too sure, and towards the end of the game seemed played out.

CLUB BOW TO EASTERN

Penalty Missed

Eastern were too good for the Club when they met on the Navy ground, Causeway Bay, yesterday afternoon in their Second Division soccer encounter, winning by 3 goals to 2.

In the first half, the Club missed a penalty and Eastern went straight away and scored through Chan Ping-to. He left Sterling without a chance of saving a hard drive. Two minutes after this E. Fowler placed the Club on level terms. The equaliser lived up to the play somewhat, and for 10 minutes the Club did most of the attacking. Lppard and Milne providing Fisher with several reasonable scoring chances.

Chan Ping-to gave Eastern the lead after snapping up a good pass from Cheng Shui-hong, and Eastern went further ahead through the latter, but Fisher decreased the Club's arrears soon after.

EAST LANCS. SCORE SIX TIMES

Souza Stops Penalty

The East Lancashire Regiment gained a comfortable victory over the Radio in their Second Division soccer encounter at Prince Edward Road yesterday, winning by six goals to nil.

The soldiers scored through Ratcliffe (2), O'Donnell (3) and Thorpe, while Hassan netted into his own goal.

The East Lanes. were awarded a penalty just before the half-time whistle. Ball took the kick, but Souza in the Radio's goal made a brilliant save, and the soldiers crossed over one goal up.

The Navy were unlucky. Of that there is no doubt. For the whole of the first half of the game they panned the Chinese in their own half and the halves and backs, and particularly Pau Ka-ping, the goalkeeper, must be commended for the brilliant manner in which they combined to keep down the Navy score. It was difficult for the Navy forwards to penetrate their opponent's defence owing to the fact that they could not find any weakness in it.

Crawford played brilliantly for the Navy, and in the first half was easily the best forward on the field. Yau Wah-hing was not strong enough to hold him and much work was thrown upon Leung In-chuan. Pau Ka-ping repeatedly earned the applause of the spectators for his many brilliant saves during the frequent Navy onslaughts.

Regier worked very hard and was well supported by Slavin who was the best of the Navy halves. The Navy were the first to make an advance, Baxter running down to finish across a magnificent centre from which Crawford shot just wide. Following this South China made a lightning-like raid during which Ho Ka-keung opened the score.

Cannell Equalises

From one of the frequent attacks made by the home team, Cannell eventually placed his team on even terms. Phipps ran down the right wing and sent across a superb pass which looked to be going in the goal. Cannell, however, intercepted the ball and hastened it's journey goalwards with a good header.

The score remained level until ten minutes after the interval, when Young Shui-yick sent South China ahead with a powerful drive. Crawford again came into prominence when he struck the crossbar with Pau well beaten.

The fourth and last goal of the match came from the foot of Young Shui-yick. He received the ball from Yau Wah-hing and ran in to beat Roberts with a good shot.

LYEMUN SURPRISE EAST LANCS.

Share Two Goals In Even Game

The Royal Artillery (Lyemun) put up a good show at Prince Edward Road yesterday when they shared the points with the East Lancashire Regiment in a premier League soccer encounter, both teams scoring once.

The East Lancs, who have suffered one or two losses lately, had several fresh players in their team which perhaps accounted for their receiving a surprise from the R.A.

The East Lanes. opened the scoring when a sudden speedy wing movement surprised the Artillery defence and Gorman netted from close range.

Harmsworth in goal was tested by the Gunners on more than one occasion before half time, but carried out his task in fine style.

After the interval Sergt. Crossley, a newcomer to the team, playing at inside-right, proved himself an able forward and made things very dangerous for the Artillery defence, but Morton, the Artillery centre half, played like a Trojan, supporting his forwards in fine style.

After 20 minutes the Artillery levelled the score following a good left wing movement, Recco, their centre-forward, netting.

STEPHENS GIVES HIS BEST DISPLAY

BUT LAPSE BY MCHARDY
CAUSES LOSS OF POINT
FORROW AND SID STRANGE SHINE

THE premier League clash between the Police and the Club at Kowloon yesterday, failed to produce the exciting football anticipated, and a poor game ended with honours even, both sides scoring once.

A draw was just about a fair result, although the Police had many chances which, with a little bit of luck, would have resulted in goals. As it was, McHardy's lapse, which allowed Drown's shot to beat him, cost them a point.

The Club defence did not appear half as confident as usual, misunderstandings continually cropping up, and Ralston's clearances were very weak. Sid Strange played strongly up to the time when an injury slowed up his play considerably, while Rodger was again kept fully occupied in dealing with innumerable shots and goalmouth scrammages.

Forrow was a great leader of the intermediate line, and his energetic play and wholehearted defensive tactics kept him continually in the limelight. With added experience, he should go far in local football.

Skinner and Gamble, the wing-halves, did their share well in a hard-worked defence, but failed to follow up an attack, leaving a large gap between themselves and the forwards. Gamble had an even share of success against Rodger, the Police right-winger, while Skinner saved a certain goal through hanging well back, when he stopped a shot from Stephens which had beaten Rodger.

Bickford was the best of the forwards and never spared himself in his efforts to pierce the Police defence. His partner, Ernie Stephens, was slow to settle down, but livened up his play a great deal towards the end. The weakness in the Club attack was at centre-forward, where Hill lacked the necessary anticipation and quickness; he should have netted on two occasions in the first half. Drown performed splendidly at inside-right, but was given little support by Fowler.

Stephens At His Best

Stephens was the 'key' man in the Police side, and was easily the best player on the field. He created all the openings for the Police, and his ball control and shooting with either foot were features of a fine all-round display. Johnston recovered some of his lost form, and it was a neat bit of opportunism that secured him the Police goal. The left-wing, composed of Brooks and Moss, were given plenty to do, and Moss sent over countless accurate centres that promised results.

The half-back line fitted in well with the attack, Gough and Parker being responsible for initiating many clever moves, but North gave a disappointing show.

Blackburn and Chris Pile showed they are still one of the best defensive combinations in the Colony, and their quick tackling and clearing smothered the Club attack time and time again.

The first minute provided an unpleasant thrill for the Police supporters when a shot by Hill was completely missed by McHardy, but the 'tail keeper' effected a surprisingly quick recovery and just prevented the ball from crossing the line!

After 22 minutes, Rose passed in to Stephens, who lobbed ahead for Johnston to take advantage of a bad misunderstanding between Ralston and Rodger to place the Police ahead.

The second half opened with a strong Police attack, and a low drive by Stephens passed underneath Rodger, who was a trifle slow in going for the ball, but Skinner appeared from nowhere and stopped the ball on the very goal-line! An extremely close call for the Club.

The Police continued to have the best of the exchanges, but after 12 minutes a breakaway by Fowler took play to the other end, and his centre to Drown saw the latter send in a glorious drive to the corner which McHardy should have saved but allowed to slip out of his grasp into the net.

ATHLETIC BEAT KOWLOON

Uninteresting Game

Kowloon lost their home fixture against the Athletic in the Second Division yesterday by two clear goals, after a very poor and uninteresting game.

The Athletic attacked strongly after the interval, and after 20 minutes went ahead when Chan Chung-in headed in from a corner-kick.

Towards the end the Athletic added their second goal after having had most of the play, Chan Chung-in taking a pass from Cheong Moon-wing to beat Min-hinnott with a fast ground shot.

ULSTERS START WELL BUT CRACK UP SAINTS DEFEAT NEWCOMERS

IN their debut soccer fixture in the First Division of the Football League, the Royal Ulster Rifles were defeated by St. Joseph's on the Valley ground yesterday by the odd goal in three.

At the commencement the Ulsters played very impressively, the St. Joseph's goal being quickly under pressure. Ferguson very nearly scored on two occasions with his head, but B. Souza, however, just managed to tip the ball over the bar on each occasion.

The Ulsters opened the scoring 15 minutes after the start through Erwin from a pass by Ferguson.

Tip Top Form

The Ulsters were at this period on tip top form and it appeared as if they would be very easy winners, but after the interval they fell away badly, and in the later stages St. Joseph's had the situation well in hand.

Soon after the opening goal an alleged infringement resulted in a penalty being awarded to St. Joseph's, and Costa levelled the scores. After the interval St. Joseph's secured the winning goal through Leonard.

Connor, in the Ulsters goal, played a very sound game, his anticipation and clearances under pressure being a feature of the match. Pickering and Stevens in the defence were unreliable, the weaknesses and misdeeds by Stevens resulting on one occasion in a goal being scored.

In the intermediate line Campbell in the centre-half position, was the most outstanding. Of the forwards Ferguson gave a very good display in a very fair line.

Of St. Joseph's team each player did well and made most of the chances given them, although many opportunities were missed by the forwards throughout the game due to erratic shooting, the ball being often sent wide of the Ulsters' goal.

SOUTH CHINA SCORE NINE

STONECUTTERS
ROUTED

In their premier division soccer encounter at Sookunpoo yesterday, South China "A" overwhelmed the R.A. (Stonecutters) side, trouncing them to the tune of 9 goals to nil.

After 10 minutes Roscoe, the Gunners' centre-half, retired with a cut over his eye, leaving the R.A. by no means strong at any time, with 10 men for the remainder of the match.

South China, who were four up at the interval scored through Ip Pak-wah (2), Wong Mei-shun (2), Fung King-cheong, Chan Kwai-hang and Chiu Kin-shing (2), while Price added a shot from Wong into his own net.

PLAYER ORDERED OFF FIELD

Liga Beat Railway

The Liga Portuguesa defeated the Railway by seven goals to nil on the Railway ground yesterday in their Third Division encounter, II. Santos (2), E. Lawrence (2), C. Santos and J. Romedios and L. Gomez (penalty) scoring.

At one stage 'fooling' crept into the play and the referee had occasion to speak to one of the Railway, eventually ordering Fung Chai, of the Railway, off the field for an alleged foul in the penalty area.

VARSITY DEFEAT RECREIO

Keen Second Division
Game Witnessed

An exhilarating display by the Recreio and University in the Second Division yesterday at King's Park, resulted in the Varsity running out winners by a goal in three.

A goal, scored in the early stages of the game by Reis gave the Recreio the lead and, despite the fact that the University dominated the play following, they clung tenaciously to their advantage, and it was not until their opponents were awarded a penalty kick midway through the second half which they failed to convert, that it looked as if they were going to be robbed of their lead.

Inspired by Blake, who played excellently throughout, the University equalised after 20 minutes in the second half when Tam beat Fernandez with a well placed shot.

Soon after Blake sealed the Recreio's fate when, following a great individual effort, he sent in a terrific shot from 30 yards to net the winning goal.

ULSTERS LOSE TO MEDICALS

You'd's "Hat Trick"

The Ulster Rifles opened their Third Division programme yesterday by losing to the Medicals by 3 goals to 2 on the Chatham Road ground. The Ulsters took the lead through Bulpin, but the Medicals equalised when Youd scored from a penalty. The latter scored again after the resumption to give the Medicals the lead.

The Ulsters drew level again with a goal by Rico but Youd scored another for the Medicals to complete his "hat-trick."

SAPPERS THIRD DIVISION WIN OVER ST. JOSEPH'S

The Engineers defeated St. Joseph's in their Third Division soccer encounter at the Valley yesterday by 4 goals to 1. Parker netting for the Engineers, and Göttsche, for St. Joseph's, just before half time. The Engineers went ahead after the resumption through Beal, Parker and Heard.

LEADS CLUB TO BRILLIANT WIN OVER C.C.C.

Gillespie And F. K. Lee Score Freely

ALEC PEARCE BOWLS WELL

Set to score 172 runs in 95 minutes in their league cricket match against the Craigengower Cricket Club at Happy Valley yesterday, the Hong Kong Cricket Club achieved this difficult task with seven wickets to spare, thanks to a magnificent batting display by H. Owen Hughes, the former Colony skipper, who carried his bat for 100 runs. He was ably supported by R. D. Gillespie who contributed 45 to the third wicket partnership of 96.

F. K. Lee, who scored 89 for Craigengower, hit 16 boundaries and was particularly harsh on anything loose, though he might have been caught behind the stumps when he was in his early twenties.

Alec Pearce bowled well for the Club and but for some indifferent fielding, his 7 wickets would not have cost 67 runs.

Both Owen Hughes and Gillespie hit out to good advantage, the former hitting 16 boundaries and the latter nine. The Club skipper (for yesterday's game) scored his 100 in 80 minutes while Gillespie was at the wicket for 38 minutes.

ABYSSINIA'S OTHER ARMY.

Correspondents And Adventurers

Motley Gathering From All The World

(By PATRICK BALFOUR)

THERE are three hotels in Addis Ababa. Each has its own special character. Each is full of overflowing.

The present inhabitants of these hotels combine to form an army far stranger, far more heterogeneous than any which fought or will ever fight on a battlefield. It is the civilian army which, from diverse motives, flocks from all over the world to the scene of a war.

Its nucleus, naturally enough, is the Press: a hundred correspondents and cameramen from England, France, Germany, Sweden, Latvia, Switzerland, Greece, Spain, Turkey, Egypt, Japan, and, above all, America; newspapermen writing an endless variety of news on an endless variety of stationery in an endless variety of languages with an endless variety of typewriters.

A Motley Throng
Newspapermen throng the streets on mule and horseback, on motor-bicycles and in American taxicabs, even, occasionally, on foot. Their clothes are as varied as their habits. There are newspapermen in neat lounge suits and newspapermen in Wild West riding costume, newspapermen garrulous and silent, serious and flippant, modest and flamboyant, drunk and sober, amateur and professional. There is a German colonel from Latvia and an Egyptian Arab from Brazil, a Swedish baron and a Bulgarian engineer.

The newspapermen live, for the most part, in the Imperial Hotel, overflowing into its outhouses and its annexes. Even its sitting-rooms have been converted into dormitories where cameramen develop their films at the washstand, the floor is piled with a litter of cameras and tripods and films in round tin boxes, and the occupants facetiously film one another in bed when there is nothing else to photograph.

The Imperial Hotel is a barrack-like structure run by a Greek. The food is Greek, plentiful and tasteless. The lounge is bare like a station waiting-room. There are a notice-board and posters on the walls, and a billiard table and basket chairs and bare-footed Ethiopian waiters, dressed in dirty white, serving drinks. The Hotel de l'Europe is more elegant. It is a mile outside the town. It is the home of the mystery men, and is only frequented by the newspapermen when they want hot baths or the mystery men. The latter come to Addis Ababa on mysterious errands, with an air of great secrecy and self-importance. They come to tout armaments or to obtain concessions or for no reason at all. They talk darkly in corners or big over drinks. They live in an aroma of rumour and speculation and depart as mysteriously as they came.

Adventurers
But the hotel most characteristic of Addis Ababa is the Majestic. The Majestic is in Ras Makonnen-street, which is not unlike the main street of a Middle-Western town. The Majestic, unequal to its name, is cheap and noisy.

It is the home of the adventurers and the soldiers of fortune: the Europeans and Americans who have come to Addis Ababa to enlist in the Ethiopian army or to get jobs as air pilots or to pick up any such pickings as the war may bring forth.

Finally, there are the bars of the town, the two elegant cinema houses, with bars attached, where the Armenians and the Greeks, the Arabs and the Indians take you into corners and recount to you, as sober fact, the most fascinating of state rumours.

The natives of Addis Ababa swell the ranks of the camp followers. Each newspaperman and mystery man and soldier of fortune has his retinue of servants and interpreters and hangers-on, of varying reputability. Speaking the most broken versions of English and French are servants too well-educated to deign to brush your trousers, servants uneducated and unable to do so, interpreters from mission schools who read the Bible all day long, interpreters who are medical students as well and continually leaving you in the lurch to attend an important surgical operation.

"Mata Hari"
Of all the hangers-on who have come my way the most disreputable, and the one for whom I have the greatest affection, is Mata Hari. That is not his name.

I call him Mata Hari because he has all the mannerisms of the traditional spy: the slinking gait, the covert looks over the shoulder, the secretive and almost inaudible tone of his communications behind a discreetly raised hand. Mata Hari is an Arab. He wears a filthy blue blazer, filthy grey flannel trousers, and a filthy orange turban which serves also as handkerchief, duster, boot-rag, and general factotum.

Mata Hari is the black sheep of a once respected family of Arab traders. He is usually in prison. Every penny of the salary I paid him as my interpreter went to bribing or bailing himself out again.

We would arrive at some village in the evening. The next morning Mata Hari would appear with chains on his wrists and the furtive, gleeful smile of a naughty boy on his lips, requesting a week's salary in advance. The money would be paid, he would be free, and he would never complain at the dissipation of his wages in such a manner. He is the least avaricious man I have ever met.

News Of The War
Mata Hari fancies himself as a newspaperman. Since my return to Addis Ababa he has taken it upon himself to send me constant bulletins of news from his part of the country.

They are written in a scrawling hand, in a language which speaks for itself. For instance: THE ETHIOPIA NEWS OF THE 11TH SEPTEMBER, 1935. TROUBLES AT 3 P.M.

Soldiers. Fights near Bazara doors some of the Soldiers entered Bazara house as some brack heads bloods come out. Bazara Manger great trouble pushed them out.

Dagash Mazh (the local governor) said the Ethiopian troops will assault the Italian troops before the time of the rain.

Dagash Mazh regarding to the lecture of the 8th advise the soldiers, regret to say, at 3 p.m. the soldiers to their misfortune and indignity of the people, robbing the vegetable, etc., inequity or equity from the Soldiers to treatment of the nations to robbing them, is it equity soldiers.

Truck passed on the leg of one

Somalee.

News from the Arabic newspapers, the warfare will be between six Governments shortly.

"The King Hailasally" his Excellency endow the ammunitions for the nations.

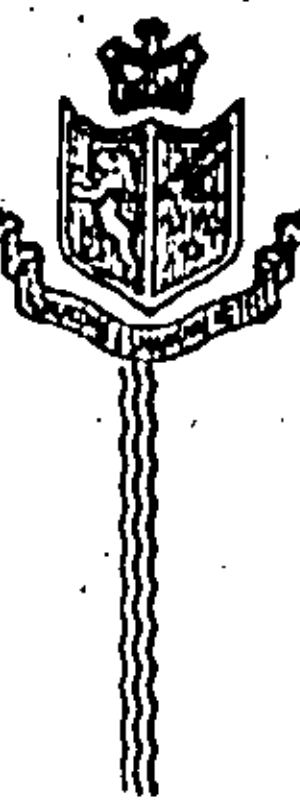

Somali Merchant Mahmood Warofaith made trench in his garden and put his money, few day repeat to see his money and not found, at once came mad.

Two longe White men Journnar arrived.

A Puzzle
But Mata Hari is not always so explicit. I am still puzzling over the meaning of a phrase in his last letter to me. It runs as follows:

Pantomime as at present time very dangrouse as many Ethupian attectives in the town & outside & urgently to pantomime & if you made the pantomime if you wants me to daily write to send you in pantomime for the words.

I am rather afraid Mata Hari may be in prison again.

WHAT IS SUCCESS? ACQUISITION OF RICHES COUNTS FOR LITTLE HOW MUCH HAVE WE DONE FOR OTHERS?

(By the Rev. J. N. Lewis Bryan)

AS we stand on the threshold of another year, we should be something less than human if we did not look forward to a year that should be crowned with success. It is something for which we instinctively strive; yet what exactly does the word mean?

On a point of fact, our views about success are really shaped by what we ultimately believe about God and the universe, and these in turn profoundly affect our world for good or evil.

For instance, we commonly speak about the nineteenth century as a highly successful age. So it was in scientific and mechanical discovery, upon which few people would want to go back. On the other hand, its success is qualified by the amount of poverty which still exists, and by the dread and danger of unemployment which have yet to be eliminated.

We speak of wealth. In what does it consist? In houses, gold, ships; or in the establishment of Justice, Equity and Truth between men and nations, and in the bringing of children into a world which cares for them in body, mind, and spirit?

The World And The Spirit Most of us want to "get on." The reason is easily understandable. Dame Nature is a mistress not easily wooed. It is only by hard toll that man wrests a living out of her, and the "rainy day" can only be provided for at the cost of stern frugality and foresight. We need not despise the efforts of a man to make such provision. After all, his body is of importance. He cannot live in any proper sense if his body is half-starved. We recognise that fact, these days, by providing food for necessitous children at school, for starved minds and starved bodies are often found together.

FILIPINO PATRIOT AND MARTYR

WHEN HONG KONG BECAME HIS ASYLUM

RIZAL Day, which is being celebrated to-day, for the convenience of the local Filipino community, instead of on December 30, commemorates the death of Jose Rizal, the Filipino patriot and martyr, who was shot on December 30, 1896.

Rizal, a doctor by profession, was a brilliant scholar and a man of many parts, holding degrees in Spain, France and Germany. Though himself a good Catholic, he fought for years against the domination of the priesthood, who held the government of the Philippines in the hollow of their hands, carrying on the ecclesiastical tradition, already destroyed in Europe, of the secular domination of the Church in Catholic countries; and to its destruction in his own country Dr. Rizal devoted himself.

A series of brilliant articles in the Spanish press soon attracted the attention of the ecclesiastical authorities and on his return to the Philippines Dr. Rizal was deported; on which he came to Hong Kong, where he established his headquarters and where he met the girl who was to be his wife for a few hours only, wedded and widowed in one day.

Second Banishment

Returning again to the Philippines, Dr. Rizal's whereabouts soon became known and he was very shortly in the hands of the authorities, who banished him to the Marianne Islands; but once more he risked a secret return to his home. This time his ecclesiastical enemies were determined to get rid of him once for all. He was shot out of hand. Before the bullets of the Guardia Civil, however, stilled the heart of this fiery patriot he was allowed to marry the fiancée whom he had met in Hong Kong; and he made his last confession, to and received absolution at the hands of those whose political dominance he had fought so strenuously.

And so, just because life tends to be so hard, and because a man feels that if he does not look after himself no one else will, he is prone to think more of the means of life, its solid comforts, than of life itself. So it comes about that, when we speak of someone "getting on," we usually mean that he is making money and providing against the day when he can retire. Independence in some parts means having enough money to be able to snap the fingers at the world and its chances; and this is a pretty common estimate of success.

On the other side, consider the cases of men like St. Paul. The things men usually count for gain, he counted but loss for Christ. Francis of Assisi voluntarily wedded himself to the Lady Poverty. For Francis Thompson, the achievement of verses was success. You can add cases of all sorts from your own experience. What of the woman who sits up night after night with a sick neighbour? Offer her a money reward. . . . Or what of parents who deny themselves for their children's education?

A different ideal of success from that of merely getting on lies behind such cases. They are not merely making the best of a bad job because they could not have some other form of success.

"Success" Of War

There are students of the history of civilisation who assert that nations in the long run are destroyed by war. Dean Inge has said; "In the long run nothing falls like ill-gotten success; the wolf-nations have died because they became intolerably wolfish. If we look far enough, there is a Nemesis upon national injustice."

The history of war has been too often that of envy, greed and robbery. Yet nations apparently achieve success by war. The Persians conquered much of the then-known world, Alexander re-conquered it; the Romans conquered it in turn. Wealth rolled in for the conqueror. Magnificent palaces and cities were built; he controlled the destinies of millions. Surely this is success! Yet even to-day we are still asking, "Who won the last War?" and feeling that the country could not easily endure another such success.

The parasite (i.e. the creature who lives at the expense of others), seems to have achieved a glorious success: He does nothing for a living. There is for him none of the sweat or toil of life. He is independent. He has what we call a good time. Such independence was won by Rome at one time for her citizens. A vast rabble was maintained by the State; rations of bread and oil were served out to it every day. The very beggars amused themselves at the circus, or basked on marble in the sun.

Some parasites of the human body get their living like this, without work. Surely here is success. They gain it, however, at the loss of even the power to feel: we are told that they have lost the organs of sensation. The parasite adopts his style of life not only at the peril of that on which he fattens, but at his own. Nothing more surely marks the human parasite, for example, than boredom. Anybody can be a parasite, but it means he must inevitably forfeit joy. Dodge work; Dodge life.

The Real Success

The common ideas about success are being severely challenged all round us to-day. We are not so ready to hail the profiteer, the man who makes a pot of money by getting in between the people and their food, the millionaire, or the winner of the Derby Sweep, as true examples of success: we ask whether success does not consist in the number of people who are helped by the more fact of our life and work; by the things we create. What the world commonly calls failure, proves again and again to be real and lasting success. Christ was broken on a Cross, yet to-day He is passionately acclaimed by countless multitudes as the Lord of all life.

The test of true success is the joy that accompanies it. Pleasure is fleeting; joy abides. As someone once said, "God punishes the useless by giving them pleasure without joy." Joy goes with all creative acts. The artist, the craftsman, anyone who is doing something practical for his fellow-men, any man or woman who does a job of work well, for its own sake, will achieve the only success worth having, as well as the "joy which no man can take away."

Europe In Quandary

CHRISTMAS brings summaries of the past twelve months, and New Year's Day equally naturally brings anticipations of the next twelve months, but never was it more difficult to forecast any, even the immediate, prospects of international relations than this year, when the attempt to make war unremunerative and unpopular is on the verge of reaching either definite failure or definite success. What we are watching is nothing less than the beginning of control of foreign policy by public opinion, and the emergence of a common conscience such as used to be embodied in the word "Christendom." It is beside the point to labour differences of opinion about even the most fundamental beliefs as indicating that the word is now without meaning. It has at any rate a geographical meaning which is easily understood. It remains the fact that there is a common civilisation and a common tradition, more particularly among the humble and poor, which has often been but badly represented in official policies, but which every now and then takes a new course for itself to the astonishment of those who confine their calculations to the gossip of the chanceries.

This deep undertow has in the last few weeks forced its way to the surface through every obstacle of etiquette and precedent, and in the words of Signor Mussolini himself, what he resented most was the public condemnation by Europe "on moral grounds." That is the kernel of the whole position. People are tired of the principles of the new Machiavellianism, which is merely a democratic adaptation of old methods of achieving ambitions in which they have no interest, and for which they have to pay in life and limb as well as in wealth and happiness. The sudden outburst at the authority of both the British and the French Governments, in spite of recent votes of confidence, and intimidated clearly that no amount of personal popularity would excuse failure to carry out the popular will. This loss of authority has to be taken into account in our anticipations.

Nobody wants to have a war with Italy, nor to see Italy financially wrecked, because she is one of the pillars on which Christendom as we know it must rest. But how is it possible to carry on a war which shows every sign of moving very slowly at a cost of £250,000 per diem? One of the signs of future events is undoubtedly that the "financial sanction" grows more important from day to day. Italy is compelled to live on her capital, because her trade has been barred from her best markets, if not from all. No amount of economy can make a substitute for new revenue, when the outgoings are so heavy.

If, as seems to be the case, Italian receipts are falling off, the only alternative is to borrow, and that is where the financial sanction comes in. It appears that none of the big banks at any rate are inclined to take advantage of the high rates of interest offered. Whatever may be the "official rate" fixed by the Dictator, the lira has no quotation in any of the great financial centres, and all payments have to be made in gold. A gold reserve has value as a backing for commercial paper, but it is subject to the serious disadvantage—which is the very reason of its power as a reserve—that it cannot be indefinitely increased, and can only be acquired by the less restricted paper at a rapidly rising par of exchange.

The "oil, coal, and iron" sanctions have been delayed to the limit of popular impatience, but the principle of making all the other League States share in all responsibilities is absolutely sound, and if the financial restrictions are likely to be effective there is so much the less need for haste. It is also to be remembered that the money question is greatly increased in importance by the revelation that the Ethiopians are quite capable of putting up delaying actions till all's blue, and that every week sees them better equipped. Their soldiers are unpaid, and their weapons are more primitive, but effective enough. Time is now on their side.

Quos Deus vult perdere prius dementat. Moral condemnation being the most dangerous condition, Il Duce should have avoided any irregularities. The enemy having been trained by Swedish officers, the Italian aeroplanes have retaliated by bombing a Swedish hospital and killing the patients. How can he expect to escape the moral condemnation of the Scandinavian countries? Added to his failure to jump at the terms offered him by M. Laval and get something signed at once, this seems to show that the supreme Direction is getting rattled.

Hong Kong Personalities

MR. C. B. BROWN

This is the seventy-fifth of the exclusive series of sketches of leading Colony residents by Mr. A. S. Konyo, the talented Hungarian artist.

OUR Personality this week is Mr. Charles Bernard Brown, A.C.A., senior partner of the firm of Linstead and Davis and Secretary of the Hong Kong Jockey Club.

Mr. Brown, who was born at Nailsworth, Gloucestershire, on July 17, 1888, is the son of a well-known Baptist minister who, though over 80 years of age, still has a full weekly list of preaching engagements. He received his education at Bishop's Stortford School, being subsequently articled to Messrs. Annan, Dexter and Co., a London firm of Chartered Accountants.

It was in January 1913 that Mr. Brown came to Hong Kong to join the firm of Linstead and Davis. Founded about 1860, the firm was originally a purely mercantile concern, dealing chiefly in piece-goods, but they gradually changed, adding house-agency and accountancy to their other business and dropping the mercantile side, until, when Mr. Brown joined them as the first qualified accountant the firm had engaged, that part of it was confined to safes, lead and cigars.

Up to that time most of the auditing in the Colony, even that of important businesses, had been performed by unqualified men, but from then onwards there was a gradual change-over, a large proportion of the work being entrusted to Messrs. Linstead and Davis. It was not until 1923 that Mr. Brown became Secretary of the Jockey Club, succeeding its first Secretary, Mr. E. J. Chapman.

Mr. Brown recalls, in connection with racing in Hong Kong, the terrible disaster of 1918 (five years before he became Secretary of the Jockey Club) of which he was a witness, when, as far as can be estimated, some 600 persons lost their lives. He had just come from tiffin when he heard a noise like a gigantic explosion of fire-crackers and looked up in time to see the matchless stands, some of which were three storeys high, collapsing. Then came a burst of flame and in about an hour all was over—the unfortunate occupants, trapped by the falling timbers, unable to escape and roasted alive. The fine range of reinforced concrete stands in use to-day was completed in 1929 and first occupied at the Spring Meeting of 1930.

Mr. Brown was lucky enough to miss the Great Strike of 1925, being on leave at the time; but he was present during the strike of 1922, called in sympathy with the strike of seamen.

Mr. Brown is a member of all the usual Clubs of the Colony. Such outdoor recreation as his work allows him consists of tennis and golf, which he plays for enjoyment, not with any idea of championships.

"SEE YOU IN BLIGHTY"

GAY SCENES AT KOWLOON WHARF WHEN TROOPSHIP SAILS

THE Kowloon Wharves presented a happy sight at noon yesterday when, amid cries of "Bon Voyage" and "See You in Blighty," the troopship Neuralia, with 900 officers and men of the Lincolnshire Regiment, and numerous other details, sailed for India and England.

The wharf was thronged with military officials, including the General Officer Commanding, His Excellency Major-General A. W. Bartholomew, who arrived by the W.D. launch Victoria shortly before the ship sailed, in addition to a large number of civilians. As the ship drew out the band of the East Lancashire Regiment, which had taken up a stance at the end of the pier, played the strains of the Lincolnshire Regiment's marching song, "The Lincolnshire Poacher" and those on board cheered lustily.

The arrangements were carried out without a flaw. The Lincolnshire Regiment boarded on Friday afternoon. Each division marched from Shamshui-po Camp. The first one arrived at the pier at 2 p.m. and the others came at 20 minute intervals. Details of other regiments came on board at 4 p.m. All first and second class passengers were on board by 10 a.m. yesterday.

The following were among those who sailed:—

Commander John P. Southby R. N. and Mrs. Elizabeth J. Story were married at the Union Church, Kowloon.

The inaugural tiffin of the newly formed Hong Kong Branch of the Rotary Club was held at the Lane Crawford Restaurant, when an address was given by the Rev. E. C. Powell of Union Church.

The closing rate of the dollar on demand was 1/0 3/4.

The Indian Recreation Club, leaders in the Second Division Cricket League, suffered their first defeat of the season when they were beaten by the Civil Service Cricket Club by 28 runs. The Civil Servants scored 118, while the Indians could only obtain 92. J. F. McGowan (C.S.C.C.) took 6 wickets for 17 runs.

If you think Massage is just rubbing, you are wrong.

Stephanie Schott "boning up" on anatomy, aided by a departed human.

BIG biceps and strong, bulging muscles, the better to stroke, "vibrate," shake, roll, knead, beat, pound and "hack" the flesh and muscles of their patients, are major requirements for members of the massage profession, which has become so popular since the close of the World War. Masseurs and masseuses, men and women massagers, must, first of all, develop their own muscles before they can work on their lame, tired and over-corpulent clients.

Deep massage is such laborious work that it cannot be carried out for more than half an hour without unusual muscular power. This is as true for the masseuses as for the male massagers. The possession of a tactile touch and muscular sensibility are other qualifications that the massagers, or physiotherapist-technicians, as they like to be called, must have.

Comparatively new in the United States, massage has been a recognized profession in China for 3,000 years. The Chinese were the first people to use manipulations as a curative measure and method of natural healing. The public baths and gymnasiums of the Roman empire reached a high state of popularity in this field. Even jungle savages use a form of baking and massage when they place their ailing tribesmen close to a blazing fire, cover their bodies with straw or seaweed and then dance barefoot upon them.

Ling's Process

It was not until the latter part of the 18th century, however, that Pehr Henrik Ling, Swedish gymnast, hygienist and poet, returned from an extensive trip throughout China and introduced to the world the basis of what is now known as Swedish massage, or "Swedish Movement Cure."

Popular in Sweden and throughout Europe ever since Ling's introduction, massage has been in the ascendancy in America since 1918, when the Government sent hundreds of soldiers, who had been injured in the line of duty, to take courses in massage and medical gymnastics. The profession of the masseur and masseuse reached a high peak in the early 1930's with the dieting craze that overtook American women. At the time, the massagers turned away from the primary ideal of their work, that part which is curative and remedial, to pound and roll away the surplus weight of countless thousands of women.

TRICKS of the TRADE

The tortures which women underwent to lose extra flesh were many and varied. Millions of miles and comparatively few pounds were pedalled away on bicycles that went nowhere. Hot baths, steamings, trick sprays from high-pressure nozzles and much pounding and kneading all played their part in the removal of excess poundage. And the masseuses and masseurs were in their glory. Business was marvellous.

Current Trend

Within the past few years, unfortunately, the massager has fallen in public repute to some extent. But the current trend is toward the uplifting of the profession, with qualified licensed schools now training students in the work.

Eight months of schooling, of which more than six are spent in hospital work, is now required by the better massage institutes. The skill and knowledge necessary to pass the license examinations can only be acquired in the schools, and the standard of personal character necessary before licensing is akin to that demanded of the nursing profession in general. However, one strict rule is that all prospective masseurs and masseuses must file their fingerprints with the police department of New York City before they can work at their trade. It is the same regulation as that governing taxi-dance hall girls.

The Difference

Masseuses and massagers throw up their hands in horror when you confuse a rub-down and a massage. They tell you that anyone can do a rub, but not a scientific massage.

Massage is the scientific manual application of certain movements of the human body, by which morbid conditions of the tissues are relieved. "Effleurage," "stroking," "petrissage," "kneading" and "tapotement" are the technical names of divisions of massage movements which the masseuses and masseurs employ.

Effleurage is a stroking movement performed with the whole of one or both hands or with the palmar surfaces of the fingers and thumb. Petrissage includes all the movements in which the tissues are grasped in one or both hands; raised from their attachments and subjected to an intermittent double pressure. It includes also the kneading manipulations in which the muscles are pressed and rolled under the hands. A series of blows administered in rapid succession with the hands striking alternately, and from the wrist only, form the basis of the tapotement movements, which include "hacking," clapping, beating and pounding. These treatments are used to improve defective circulation and are one of the most useful for promoting the nutrition of weak and wasted muscles.

For Insomnia

Even insomnia surrenders to the soothing fingers of the expert masseur. So if sleep refuses to come after you have counted a lot of sheep jumping over a fence, phone for a masseur. The massage for insomnia should be given in the evening, if possible around the patient's bedtime. To get the best results, the stage should be set with the lights lowered.

Healing of appendicitis incisions can be aided by massage. In many cases it is ordered by doctors. By massaging the flesh around the wound, the circulation of the blood in that area is aided, which in turn aids the growing of the tissues back into their proper places. Some patients have a tendency, after such an operation, to stoop in order to relieve the strain on the scar. Massaging, correctly administered, rights this. This treatment tends to loosen the muscles which have contracted in the natural body-process of healing. If steps are not taken to counteract this post-operation atrophy, it may become permanent.

Professional masseuses now have their place in the massager's routine of work. No case is usually taken except under the direction or at least with the consent of a doctor, and absolute loyalty and obedience to the doctor in charge of the case must be observed. Salaries for massagers in hospitals and institutions are comparable to those for nurses. Treatment fees in private practice, although formerly about U.S.$5 for a massage during the hey-day of the dieting craze, average to-day between $2 and $5.

There is definitely nothing to equal 'Ovaltine' as the best safeguard against wintry conditions. 'Ovaltine' presents, in the most easily digestible form, every nutritive element required for building up the entire physical and nervous system.

Almost in Confidence

New Year's Eve

THE New Year's Eve Carnival Dance at the Hong Kong Hotel proved to be one of the most successful functions that the Colony has seen for some time. One of the highlights of the evening was the large number of distinctively cut dresses worn by the women who attended. It was difficult, however, to note any particular trend or colour, mainly because the number was too large for one to judge accurately.

Miss B. Gerrard was there in a beautiful wine crepe, while her sister had on a dainty black and white crepe ensemble. Miss S. Jeffries looked lovely in a delightful shade of green, while Miss C. Moir and Miss C. Ferguson chose the new shade of green. Miss Marian Lane, Miss Anne Senior, Miss P. Homan, Mrs. Kilbee and Mrs. Reek were all in various attractive types of black, each of which was finished off with very becoming accessories. A delicate touch to the vivid scene was added by the sweet blue and pink organdies worn by Miss M. Westcott and Miss Anne Evans. Miss E. Holloway chose silver lame, while Miss V. Crapnell had on white crepe trimmed with diamante sparkles. Miss S. Baskett looked charming in vagabond blue lace, Miss V. Boeckler in lemon crepe-de-chine, Miss Sheila Dewnap in a lovely rose-pink, Mrs. C. Brown in a fitting white crepe, Mrs. Wallington in figured satin, Mrs. B. Bell in pink and gold lame, Miss E. Thomson in pink taffeta, Mrs. J. Wolfe in a well-cut purple crepe, Miss W. Marsh in white taffeta, Miss K. Moir in figured silk, Mrs. J. Cuthill in black and silver, Mrs. J. D. Thomson in rich blue, Miss M. Robson in white charmeuse, Miss D. Johnston in white and silver tissue, Mrs. E. Hanlon in white, and Mrs. V. Weill in white crepe.

Gloucester's Popularity

THE Gloucester Hotel was also a popular rendezvous, and among those who danced there on New Year's Eve were Mrs. Skinner, in white charmeuse, trimmed with silver sequins and finished with a smart white coat, Mrs. Bateman, who chose a black satin skirt with a bodice of silver tissue, Mrs. Des Noyes, who is staying in the Colony on a visit from Canada, was distinctly smart in a simple but well-cut gown of black. Mrs. Bains looked charming in smart black lace, and Mrs. Davis delighted in a model of fawn lace. Mrs. Marford chose velvet trimmed with gold tissue.

Mrs. E. F. Barnes wore a dainty fawn lace, smartly set off with brown velvet flowers. In the same party were Mrs. E. Kelly, a visitor from Melbourne, and Mrs. Havelaar. The former chose brightly patterned navy crepe and the latter rich satin. One of the smartest frocks of the evening was that worn by Mrs. McRobby.

Mrs. Fowle appeared in a gown of deep blue, Mrs. O. A. Smith chose black, as did Mrs. R. A. Young. Miss J. Weller looked attractive in dainty pink lace, while Mrs. J. Chalmers, Mrs. D. Lyons, and Mrs. Thorpe were all distinctively gowned.

Officers' "Flicks" On Kent

AN ideal way of spending Sunday evening is at the Officers' "Flicks" on board H.M.S.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Lammert, Miss M. Lammert and Mr. G. P. Lammert enjoyed Christmas Day at their match.

Kent. It is something rather novel in Hong Kong to attend a picture show in the open air, but when you view the scenes through rails and rigging, and sitting alongside an eight-inch gun, it becomes still more exciting.

I had this pleasure last Sunday, and I must say I enjoyed it to the uttermost. After cock-tails in the "Gripps" we went on board the cruiser. Our party was taken below and we ate our meal sitting on couches or any other immovable object.

The programme was thoroughly palatable, Laurel and Hardy being the principal feature. There were several parties, numbering in all about 30 people, and nearly all danced at the Hotel when the show concluded at about 11.30.

Local Honours

THEIR many friends will heartily congratulate Dr. W. B. Moore and Dr. R. M. Gibson on their inclusion in this year's New Year's Honours list. It is a pleasant British custom to mark the conclusion of a successful career of service by the bestowal of honours. They place an official seal of recognition on good work well accomplished, and though they can never, of course, be "claimed," it is only fitting that devoted service should be rewarded with something that says in effect: "Well done, thou good and faithful servant."

A certain amount of surprise has been caused by the very short list of people so honoured in the Colony this year. The dark and devious ways in which these things are managed are a complete mystery to those not in the know, but it would be interesting to discover why the claims of so many others who have earned some recognition by steady service for long periods have been overlooked. Or have they only been postponed?

Socialists And "Honours"

THE Socialist attitude to the acceptance of "Honours" is logical and consistent, but extremely bad psychology. It is all very well to say that social service is its own reward; but the average human being delights in the "Honour" which implies recognition of his efforts; and it is a harmless fancy which does nobody any harm.

Mr. Walter Citrine's acceptance of a Knighthood last year was cruelly criticised in the Socialist press. A veritable spate of letters was printed in the New Statesman, almost all the correspondents deprecating his acceptance of an honour from the very regime he and his party so vehemently denounce. Some of them talked about a "betrayal"—that blessed word!

It will be remembered that when Canada achieved its first Socialist Government it was intimated that Canadian statesmen did not in future require any honours to be bestowed on them by the Home Government and the King. It was soon found, however, that voluntary social services were severely curtailed by this ban, and it was removed a few years later without anyone being one penny the worse for a harmless indulgence to a very human frailty.

The general community at large also comes into the question to some extent. There is hardly any other means, except to delight in their bestowal, by which the public as a whole can show its appreciation of disinterested service. If honours were banned altogether the step would certainly be regretted by the local general community, and that would be a pity.

"A Country Girl"

ON Boxing Day I went to the first dress rehearsal of "A Country Girl," the next stage production of the Hong Kong Philharmonic Society. The stage settings and costumes are most attractive and the players are all hard at work to give the Colony a real treat. No matter how many times they were interrupted by their hard-to-please conductor, Bandmaster Yule, they went on quite happily, evidently determined that this production will top all their previous successes.

Mrs. Snowden-Jones and Mrs. A. M. Bowes-Smith will both be very much missed, but, on the other hand, there are three interesting newcomers to be welcomed—Anne Winter, Winifred Lawson and C. W. E. Bishop. Anne Winter, has had vast experience as principal lady for the Portsmouth Players.

Cyril Brown and Bandmaster A. B. Yule, to whom the Society owe the success of Coleridge Taylor's "Hiawatha," performed in the spring of last year, are Producer and Musical Director, while Myrtle Brown is adding to the attraction of the programme by doing special dances. The dialogue is partly re-written with topical allusions by L. A. Ropes. The principals in a cast of over seventy are C. W. E. Bishop, L. A. Jordan, W. Gill, R. C. Frost, R. S. Spencekay, J. C. M. Grenham, H. J. Best, H. M. Cockle, Winifred Lawson, Anne Winter, Bobbie Blake, Molly Portallion, Maude Mather, Muriel Smith and Nina Valentine.

And, incidentally, I hear there are over a hundred and forty picturesque dresses for you to see.

Inadequate Dance-Floors

SOMETHING should really be done about enlarging the dance-floor at the Hong Kong Hotel, to cope with the rush of revellers at any special time, such as New Year's Eve, for example. I am told by one who was there that the congestion was so great last week as to make the dance a "farce." Hundreds of couples crowded together and occupied one square foot of space each, swaying slightly, for the most part, in time to the music, this being about as much of "dancing" as could be indulged in. Or if that is perhaps an exaggeration, it is a fact that the whole mass of dancers was so closely wedged together that there was really very little pleasure to be obtained from getting up on to the dance-floor at all.

It seems that the Hotel is a victim of its own popularity; and one way to avoid the congestion on these special "gala" nights would seem to be to throw open the three or four rooms available on other floors of the hotel on these special occasions, especially when the management is assured of so much patronage in advance by the booking of tables. It is not as though they are suddenly taken by surprise. Anyway, something should be done. — COMMENTATOR.

THE LEAGUE REPORT

WORK DURING 1935

Saar Plebiscite And E. African Dispute

ITALO-ABYSSINIAN CHARGES AND COUNTER-CHARGES

London, Yesterday.—The League Secretariat has published a summary of the year 1935 which mentions the vital importance for the League of the Saar plebiscite and the Italo-Ethiopian dispute. It gives an account of the legal, constitutional, political and intellectual co-operation questions, and the economic and financial communications, the transit, health, social and humanitarian work, and the technical co-operation between the League and China.

EXPLOSIVE BULLETS
The Italian Government sent a communication to the League Secretariat denouncing the use of explosive bullets by Ethiopian troops. The document contains a medical report on the death of Sergeant Dalmazio Birago, X-ray photographs of his wounds and pieces of the projectile found in them, and also of the holes made in Sergeant Birago's machine by the explosive projectile which wounded him. Two other X-ray photographs of wounds received by Askaris in the fighting at Azbi are included. A medical report, in conformity with expert opinion, concludes that Sergeant Birago's wound was caused by an explosive bullet.

On December 31 the Minister of Ethiopia in Paris sent a note denying the Italian accusation of the use of explosive bullets by the Ethiopian troops. It mentions the evidence of Major Dotche, who said that in November 1934 he visited the munitions depot at Taffari Katama, where the Italians state that they found explosive bullets.

ETHIOPIAN CHARGES
On December 30 the Emperor of Ethiopia informed the League that the Italians in retreating in Shire-el-Tembien burnt churches and proceeded systematically to exterminate the civil population. He adds that the Italians used asphyxiating poisonous gases.

On January 1 the Emperor of Ethiopia informed the League that Italian aircraft completely destroyed the Swedish Red Cross Ambulance, where many sick and wounded were lying, despite clear conventional signs. The note ends by saying: "We raise further grave protests against the criminal activity of the Italian Government in violation of its international engagements."

ECONOMICS IN BULGARIA
The League Commissioner in Bulgaria published the 37th report of the economic situation in September and October 1935. Foreign trade improved during these months. The value of the exports for the month of October is the highest in 1935. The favourable balance for the first 10 months is 192,000,000, against 100,000,000 in 1934 and 438,000,000 in 1933. — British Wireless Service.

N.T. AGRICULTURAL EXHIBITION

EVEN GREATER SUCCESS THAN LAST YEAR

NEARLY 400 EXHIBITORS

A RED letter day was recorded in the history of the New Territories Agricultural Association at Sheung Shui District yesterday, when they held their ninth annual agricultural exhibition, which proved an even greater success than that of last year. About 6,000 exhibits, as against last year's 5,000, were displayed on the various stalls, which, though increased by four this year, were not sufficient to hold the exhibits, the number of exhibitors amounting almost to 400.

Foreigners visiting the show expressed great surprise at the variety of foreign vegetables, which they could hardly believe had been produced on New Territories soil. The increase in the production of these imported varieties was very noticeable.

The various exhibits of grain, rice and other cereals were no numerous that they had to be displayed under the tables. The gates of the show were opened at 10.30 a.m., and at 2.30 p.m., Mr. Lawrence Kadoorie officially declared the show open. The exhibition will be open again to-day until late in the afternoon, when those wishing to purchase exhibits will be free to do so.

To-day at 2.30 p.m. Mr. T. Megarry, District Officer, North, will present the prizes to the successful exhibitors.

Attractive displays, not for competition, were again made by Lady Ho Tung, Hong Lok Yuen, the Botanical and Forestry Department and the students of the Tat Tak School, respectively.

Lady Ho Tung's stall displayed numerous samples of fruit and vegetables, all of which were being grown on her farm, the Tung Ying Hok Po. Among her outstanding exhibits were Chinese leeks, foreign cabbages and fruit.

A vast improvement was seen in the quality of the display of the

THEIR MAJESTIES ON HOLIDAY

Eastbourne Visit Likely

London, Yesterday.—It is expected that Their Majesties the King and Queen will again visit Eastbourne this year, probably arriving in the latter half of February.

The King went to Eastbourne last spring on medical advice, and was stated to have benefited by his stay. Their Majesties will go to Compton Place, the Duke of Devonshire's residence, and the visit may last a little over a month. — British Wireless Service.

Tat Tak School, their oranges being the most outstanding exhibit. On their stall, the two shields, one presented by Lady Ho Tung in 1932 and the other presented by Mr. Horace Kadoorie in January 1934, won in competition by the school, were once again shown.

Mr. Wells' Speech

In his opening address the Rev. H. R. Wells said:—
Mr. Kadoorie, ladies and gentlemen: We are highly honoured to day by your presence at the opening of this show. It is a great pleasure to have one of your family to visit us. The family name is famous for many good institutions in Hong Kong and elsewhere.

"This is the ninth consecutive annual show of fruits and vegetables produced in the New Territories, and we are quite sure that these shows do good in several ways. Better articles are produced year by year and we are informed that the quantity of agricultural products apart from rice has increased enormously.

"For over three years we have had the services of a man who has been a great helper of farmers. He is not afraid of hard work and has had considerable experience in many directions, and many farmers profess to have secured great benefit from his labours. I refer to Mr. Lam Shai-lin, who is with us to-day.

"For nine years we have had some steadfast helpers on the Committees and a large number of interested people have given much time and thought to bettering the local conditions. Almost every imaginable subject connected with agriculture has been branched and discussed from time to time.

Vocational Training
"Many have been dropped as not being suitable to our present state of development, but many are constantly being received.

"Some vocational training has been attempted in connection with a number of schools in various parts of the New Territories, and this has aroused considerable interest among the students. The school at Ping Shan with which Mr. Tang Yau-shan is connected produces some excellent articles which make a special exhibit. This should have great results in the next generation.

"We have lately been able to engage a young man who has had considerable advantages in being trained in the Ling Nan Agricultural Middle School at Canton, and Mr. Li Shiu-ying has given much valuable advice about the use of the land leased to the Association (Continued on Page 15)

THAMES FLOOD CONDITIONS

Reassuring Note In Official Statement

TRAFFIC DIVERTED THROUGH ETON

London, Yesterday.—

Although the flood conditions in many districts of the Thames Valley were again worse yesterday, and the rate of flow of the river was then over 9,000,000,000 gallons in 24 hours, there was a reassuring note in yesterday's official statement of the Thames Conservancy, to the effect that with the present tendency the river should steady and fall. But continued rain was forecast for the next 24 hours at least.

Yesterday the main Bath Road through Maidenhead had to be closed owing to the depth of the floods, and a diversion of traffic through the narrow streets of Eton resulted in blocks and delays.

The Great Western Railway hope to effect temporary repairs to the Salisbury-Devizes road bridge over the main line in Wiltshire in time to render it safe for railway traffic again to-morrow. The inundations have caused a further subsidence of the railway embankment on the local Southern line, and an omnibus service has had to be substituted between the places affected by the discontinuation of the train service. — British Wireless Service.

The position in the other impending Scottish by-election in Ross and Cromarty is still undefined. The newspapers suggest that the Dominions Secretary, Mr. Malcolm MacDonald, will not decide whether to accept the invitation of the local Liberal Association to stand as a National Government candidate for a day or two. The various organisations representing the different sections of the National Government supporters in the constituency have yet to conclude their consideration of the situation arising from the elevation of the sitting member, Sir Ian MacPherson, to the Peerage.—British Wireless Service.

NURSING HOME FOR KOWLOON

New Premises Opened Yesterday

LARGE NUMBER ATTEND FUNCTION

In the absence of the Portuguese Consul, who was unable to attend owing to unavoidable circumstances, Mr. F. P. V. Soares, of the Portuguese Consulate, performed the opening ceremony at 8 p.m. yesterday, of the new Kowloon Nursing Home, which is situated in Austin Road, near Gun Club Hill.

A large number of local Portuguese residents, many of whom are connected with the medical profession, attended the function. Speaking in his native tongue, Mr. Soares expressed regret at the absence of the Consul, and, after eulogising the work of the proprietress of the new nursing home, Mrs. A. M. Souza Remedios, in Shanghai and elsewhere, Mr. Soares declared the place open and wished it every success.

Toast Drunk

Mr. Tso Tsan-tai spoke in similar vein, and also mentioned that several members of his family owed their health to-day to the ministrations of Mrs. Remedios. Dr. F. X. Rosa replied on behalf of Mrs. Remedios and members of the nursing home. A toast to the success of the establishment was then drunk in champagne.

Among those present were Mr. J. A. de Almeida (the President of the Liga Portuguesa), Mr. F. V. Barreiros, Mr. H. B. Souza, Mr. A. J. C. Rocha, Mr. F. X. V. Ribeiro, Mr. F. Silva, Mr. J. Silva, Dr. E. Sousa, Mr. V. Sousa and Mr. A. M. Remedios.

ALLEGED MURDER OF PRISONERS

"FREQUENT BARBAROUS ATROCITIES"

ITALY'S HAND MAY BE FORCED

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Rome, Yesterday.—The whole Italian nation is filled with indignation at the "frequent barbarous atrocities" alleged to have been perpetrated on Italian prisoners by Abyssinians, it was stated yesterday in authoritative quarters here, where it is pointed out that Italy will be compelled to resort to the severest reprisals, in the course of which "the most modern weapons of chemical warfare will perhaps be employed."

Exception is also taken to the recent reports in the foreign press on the Abyssinian campaign, which are described as exaggerated or completely false. It is denied emphatically that the Italian troops in the territory of Shire burnt Coptic churches, as well as that Ras Gugsa has been court-martialled and shot.

Notwithstanding all reports to the contrary, the Italian losses of planes are stated to be only four, including one shot down by the Abyssinians on Thursday near Makalle, the other not having been brought down by the enemy but forced to land owing to mechanical defects.

In contrast to the semi-official hint as to the possibility of poison gas being employed shortly, the agitation to this effect which has been carried on by the press for the last day or two disappeared from all the Rome papers yesterday, as if at a word of command.

The Italian press again seems to have been taken completely by surprise at the storm of protest which this agitation raised in England and the United States, the public opinion being considered as all the more inopportune in the latter country, since a law making the policy of neutrality more severe has just been submitted to Congress.—Trans-Ocean Service.

NEUTRALITY IN U.S.A.

Special Bill Before Representatives

DISCRETIONARY POWERS FOR PRESIDENT

Washington, To-day.—A permanent Neutrality Bill, giving the President discretionary powers to embargo war materials and retaining the present obligatory embargo on actual implements of war, was introduced into the House of Representatives yesterday by Mr. Sam D. McReynolds, Chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House.

Mr. McReynolds said that the bill was satisfactory to the administration and was drafted after long conferences with the President and Department of State officials. Under the bill the embargoes which the President would be empowered to impose on the shipment of material used for war purposes would restrict the exports to all belligerents to ordinary peacetime quantities. Food and medical supplies would be specifically exempted.

Mr. McReynolds added that he would submit an amendment exempting American countries at war with non-American countries from the mandatory arms embargo. The bill also generally bans financial transactions with belligerent countries.

The measures are specifically aimed at enacting into law the President's policy that all trade with belligerents is at the trader's own risk.

Simultaneously Senator Pittman in the afternoon introduced a similar bill into the Senate, which, however, makes it obligatory for the President to embargo all exports to belligerents exceeding the peacetime quantities.

The PASSING HOUR

A fortnight ago I wrote "Heaven forbid that I should attempt to put foot into the high regions of theory about aesthetics," but it is very difficult to resist the straight challenge of "Eoyore" in the last issue of the Sunday Herald, and all the more because his "middle-brow" point of view agrees with my own angle of vision. I understand that the Editor is giving all of us an opportunity of forming our own opinion, and possibly expressing it, about Jacob Epstein's "Genesis." No more than "Eoyore" do I claim any "authority." I hold that when any statue or picture is publicly exhibited, anybody that is sufficiently a lover of art to go and see it has the right to express his own preferences, and when there is a broad difference of opinion the discussion should not be a private fight but a "free-for-all."

GENERAL PRINCIPLES

I do not believe that there are any general principles that can be learned in a classroom and relied upon to make an outstanding artist or a masterly work of art. The simple reason is that in the course of rising to the best sort of civilization, in the pursuit of the famous trinity of objects placed before us by so many thinkers like Dr. Inge—"the Good, the Beautiful, the True"—we use different faculties. They are ultimate, and we must use our own perceptions, however inadequate. The popular theorist of the day is no doubt Croce, some of whose very suggestive treatises I have read with great care. Hartmann preceded him, and there is the English Bosanquet. But their works are really contributions to Philosophy or Psychology, and they appeal to Reason, not to Vision. As I am not an artist, reading about theories of art will not make me one. Whether we derive our reaction to a picture from association, or heredity, or experience, or any other source, it is a matter for argument and reasoning, not for perception. We may afterwards discuss whether our own like or dislike agrees with professional critics', but our feeling is based on our own vision, and we may admit that we disagree with the artist about the Good and the Beautiful without thereby implying that we disagree about the Beautiful.

EPSTEIN AND THE PUBLIC

THE controversy about "Genesis" which has raged in England owes its interest to the direct challenge of the artist to so much that has become conventional. In "Rima" I found that I liked it, and found that the objections based on merely conventional grounds left me cold. The famous bronze busts seemed to me to be consummate revelations of the characters of the models. In one, for instance, in which that old cavalier Cunningham-Graham is the subject there is a perfect example of material being so fashioned as to catch the soul of the man. In that case I was able to compare the bust with the original, whom I used to meet in his London days. Others I could enjoy without that reference to the model because it seemed clear that he had seized the same essential quality of the sitter. In other words his soul and the soul of his model were in harmony. I must apologise even for the use of the word "soul," which expresses in one syllable what everyone can understand even though he would as a psychologist deny that it represented anything that could be proved to exist. That is not the gist of the present discussion. We may take it for granted that in the making of a masterpiece the soul of the artist is engaged as the maker of the representation, and that it responds to something in the subject that we may also call the soul of the thing seen.

ABSTRACTIONS

IN a masterpiece then there is always something of the abstract, something generalised, though the generalisation may or may not be combined with the individual. I have found that in portraying the individual, which introduces a certain limitation to the work, Epstein has made a reputation which means at least that

GERMAN CHURCH SCHISMS

Declaration By Bonn Professors

DEFINITE STAND TAKEN ON EVANGELISM

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Berlin, Yesterday.

In an attempt to bridge the theological schisms which threaten the life of the church in Germany, according to a semi-official news agency, all the ordinarius professors of the faculty of Evangelism and Theology in the University of Bonn have signed the following declaration:

"We recognise the holy scriptures as the only writings affording a rule and guide for belief. We conform with the profession of faith in the proclamation of the German Evangelical Church of July 10, 1933, Article 1: 'The inviolable basis of the German Evangelical Church is the evangelism of Jesus Christ, as testified in the holy scriptures and revealed anew in the professions of the reformation.'

"On the basis of this evangelism we give decisive support to the consolidation of the nation on the principles of blood and soil, the German character and history. For the same reason, however, we reject any idolisation of the forces of nature."

CALL TO YOUTH

"We therefore call on our German youth not to let themselves be misled by the confusion prevailing in ecclesiastical conditions, but to struggle to gain a personal Christian faith. We demand the maintenance of the State theological faculties and repudiate every attempt to substitute Popish theology or ecclesiastical ordinances for the personal fight for faith. "We desire the co-operation of all forces in the church under uniform leadership in a brotherly spirit for the maintenance and reconstruction of the reformatory people's church."—Trans-Ocean Service.

there are thousands who sympathise enough to understand what he is doing. The problem that has made controversy arises rather from the works in which he sets out to portray his own abstract ideas without the limitation of the individual subject. He is then as it were communing with his own soul, and when he shows us his work he cannot complain if questions of technique—in which we may take for granted he is an adept—are made secondary to the question of whether we agree with his abstract ideas—in other words, with his soul, for it is that that he is showing us. His "Venus" was a challenge to the conventional ideas of female beauty, which he evidently regards as sentimental and conventional. His "Christ" shown as a mummy, is a challenge to Christianity. His "Genesis" is a challenge to all the old ideas of civility, which he regards as a mere pretence disguising the elemental instinct of reproduction. When "Eoyore" therefore asks why he should be expected to admire "Genesis" I should reply that there is no reason at all. I myself do not believe that the human man of civilisation is utterly elemental, and I do not like that interpretation of our humanity. "Eoyore" apparently agrees, and there is no reason why he should not say so.

NEW EDUCATION IN RUSSIA

Starvation Salaries For Teachers

ILLITERACY AMONG OFFICIALS

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Moscow, Yesterday.

Revealing disclosures concerning the starvation salaries paid by the Soviet State to the professors of the Moscow pedagogical institute were contained in yesterday's issue of the newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda, which states that the monthly salaries of the teaching staff vary between 43 and 175 paper roubles, or roughly between £2 and £7, only one professor getting as much as 247 roubles.

The paper stresses that in these conditions teachers are naturally compelled to accept any other work which may be offered in order to eke out their existence. The purchasing power of the above-mentioned salaries may be gauged by the fact that a pound of meat costs five roubles.

Another sidelight on the efficiency of the Soviet school system is afforded by an editorial in yesterday's semi-official Isvestia, which deals with the campaign waged against illiteracy in Soviet Russia and states that many Soviet authorities lack the most elementary knowledge, and that official documents are often drafted in completely deficient spelling.—Trans-Ocean Service.

NEW REGIME IN GREECE

Venizelos Buies 'The Hatchet

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Athens, Yesterday.

That the hatchet has definitely been buried between the King of Greece and his former arch-foe, M. Venizelos, appears to be shown by the fact that the latter has requested the Foreign Minister to convey to the King his best wishes for the New Year.

In his message M. Venizelos expresses the hope that under the rule of George II the "regime of crowned democracy" may become as firmly established as under the rule of George I. In this manner the national unity, which has been badly shaken during the past 20 years, may be restored, and the country thus become eternally indebted to the King.—Trans-Ocean Service.

NAVAL PARLEYS

To Be Continued To-morrow

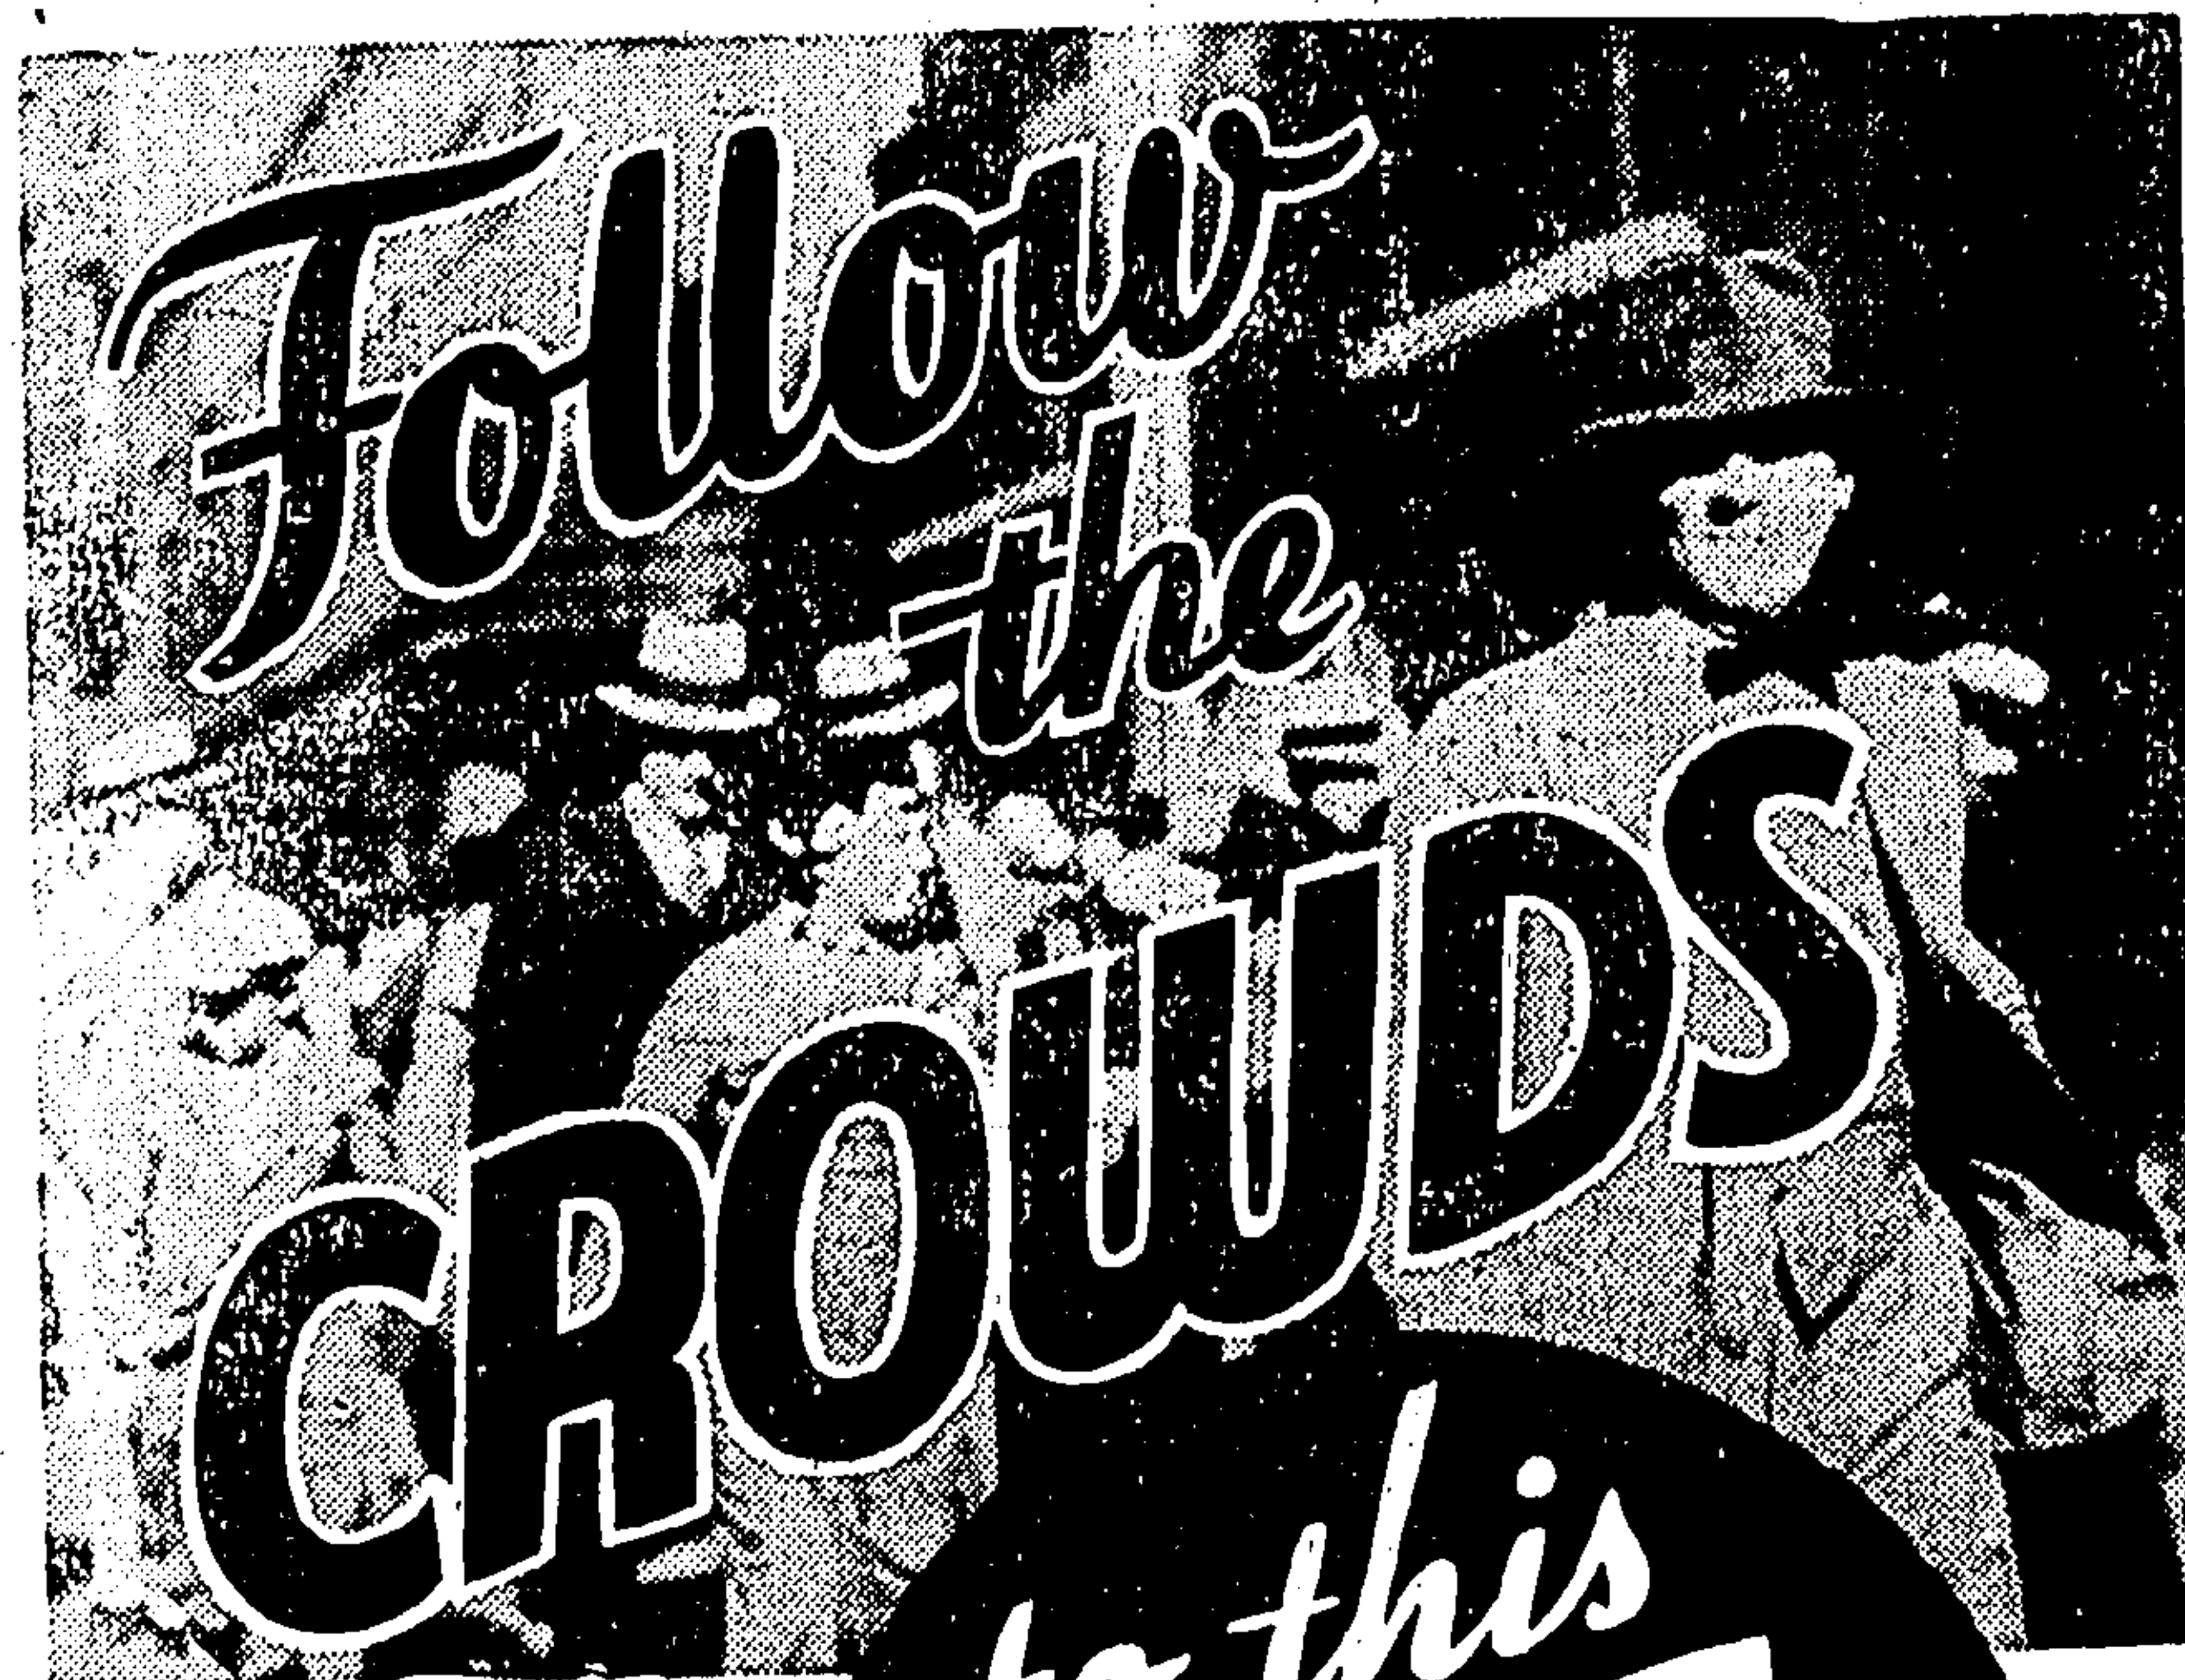

London, Yesterday.

The Naval Conference, which was adjourned over the Christmas holidays, will be resumed on Monday afternoon when the election of a President in succession to Sir Samuel Hoare may be considered. The First Committee will continue their examination of the various proposals advanced by the different delegations.

Delegates will attend the official Government dinner on Thursday evening.—British Wireless Service.

Ten cases of cholera in Bangkok and three cases of smallpox in Shanghai were reported during the week ended December 28.

ARMY BEAT CLUB TO WIN TRIANGULAR RUGBY TOURNAMENT

"Y" LADIES OUTPLAY CHAMPIONS

MISS FOWLER AND MISS O. DALZIEL SHINE

MRS. READ SCORES ONLY GOAL

PLAYING an infinitely better brand of hockey than their opponents, the "Y" Ladies yesterday scored a meritorious win over the Hong Kong Ladies (holders) in the Caer Clark Cup competition at Sookunpoo, thereby improving their chances of forcing a re-play with the champions to decide the ultimate destination of the trophy for the season.

The "Y" Ladies fully deserved their win and on the day's play the surprising thing was that they did not win by a bigger margin. Miss A. Fowler showed in no uncertain manner that her selection in the Interport team was fully justified, while Miss O. Dalziel proved that although she has not been "capped," she is one of the best right-winners in the Colony.

For the losers Miss Grey and Mrs. Bell both played well, while Miss J. Dalziel held her forwards together in great style though they were unfortunate to come up against Miss Fowler at her best.

LADIES' TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP

Entries Closed Draw To-night

The following have entered for the Ladies' Colony Singles and Doubles Lawn Tennis Championships, the draws for which will be made at the U.S.R.C. to-night.

Singles—Mrs. M. C. Dowling, Mrs. W. Wilson, Mrs. J. F. Kayll, Miss A. Mackenzie, Miss M. Griffiths, Miss M. Saville, Mrs. Litton, Mrs. B. Thorpe, Miss R. Perry and Miss R. Hancock.

Doubles—Mrs. L. R. Andrews and Mrs. Litton, Mrs. M. C. Dowling and Mrs. Kayll, Mrs. W. Wilson and Mrs. Hancock, Miss M. Griffiths and Mrs. Morris, Miss R. Humphreys and Mrs. Y. Chiu, Mrs. Staffer-Smith and Miss M. Saville.

In the first half the "Y" Ladies kept up a continual pressure and they might have scored had they fed their wings more, their inside forwards being too inclined to keep the ball to themselves with the result that they were robbed time and again. Meanwhile Miss A. Fowler dealt so effectively with what little that came her way that the ball was, for the greater part of the game, in the Hong Kong Ladies' territory.

Immediately after the interval the "Y" were in the limelight again and Miss O. Dalziel almost beat Mrs. Lanson with a "fing shot" which the latter only just managed to save.

On the few occasions that she got the ball Miss J. Dalziel appeared dangerous, but always met the watchful Miss Fowler, who invariably cleared with a coolness and precision that would have done credit to a much more experienced player.

The Hong Kong Ladies broke through about 10 minutes from time and a "knock-on" against Miss P. McGaw gave Hong Kong a short corner from which they almost scored, Miss Weller doing well to clear a shot after a goalmouth melee.

Then Miss O. Dalziel secured possession and took it down on the right wing before transferring to Mrs. Read who was well placed and who made no mistake with her shot into the corner of the goal.

H. K. Ladies:—Mrs. J. Lanson; Miss E. M. Gray and Miss J. Smalley; Miss K. Glover, Mrs. M. Bell and Miss B. Helbling; Miss F. Marsh; Miss M. Smalley, Miss J. Dalziel, Miss H. Hance and Miss C. Ferguson. P. McGaw and Miss A. Fowler; Mrs. Brown, Miss E. Thomson and Mrs. A. B. Henry; Miss O. Dalziel, Miss S. Dalziel, Mrs. M. Read, Miss J. Adey and Miss M. Westcott.

RECREIO LOSE TO MACAO

Remedios Plays Well In Defence

The Recreio hockey team proved no match for the Macao Hockey Club juniors yesterday, being defeated by four clear goals on the U.S.R.C. ground.

The Macao forward line worked in almost perfect harmony. A. A. Remedios played a very hard game at right-back for the local team and saved his side from a bigger defeat.

Macao scored early through Ariosa and went further ahead when Angelo scored. After the interval the Recreio defence played up better, but Angelo and Ariosa again scored.

The Recreio were represented by: Faria; A. A. Remedios and E. Alves; Silva, E. Gosano, and A. Botelho; C. d'Almada, J. Ribeiro, A. M. Xavier, A. B. Xavier and T. Rozario.

Mrs. Kayll, who is almost assured of the doubles title, will be faced with stern opposition from Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Dowling in the defence of her singles title.

A dramatic picture made from the deck of the U.S. destroyer Peary near the Philippines as survivors of the wrecked British freighter Silver Hazel were hauled aboard. Inset are Mr. and Mrs. George Bissinger of San Francisco, who were among those rescued. Four were drowned.

MACAO BEATEN BY K.I.T.C.

Well Merited Win For Local Side

TARA SINGH OUTSTANDING

In a very interesting and exciting hockey game yesterday on the U.S.R.C. ground, the Kowloon Indians' Tennis Club, Mamak Tournament champions, secured a well deserved victory over the Macao Hockey Club by 3 goals to 1.

Ramzan, the Indians' goalkeeper, gave one of his best displays this season, bringing off many spectacular saves under extremely heavy pressure.

Tara Singh, the Indian pivot, was the most outstanding player on the field. By quick tackling he frustrated many promising moves by the Portuguese forwards.

The leader of the winners, Awtar Singh, was also in good form. Never unduly selfish, he alternated his play with bouts of short passing with his inside forwards and with long passes to the wings. He was always ready to assay a shot and his two goals were well-merited.

G. Singh Plays Well

Gurbachan Singh, who played at inside-right was not really at home in that position but displayed his usual clever stickwork and kept Ariosa and Costa fully engaged.

The visitors were best served by Ariosa, in the centre-half berth, and Rozorio inside left. The former was very prominent in his clearing and tackling and was always up with the play.

Visiting Leader Shadowed

P. Angelo, the visitors' leader, was too well marked by Tara Singh to be really effective, but he opened up the play by keeping the other forwards going with long passes whenever he had a chance.

The game started very evenly and the Indians had a narrow escape when Ramzan saved a hard shot from Angelo.

Soon after missing a "sitter" Awtar Singh opened the scoring following a short corner. The Indians then went further ahead when Awtar Singh scored from a pass from Gurbachan Singh.

After the interval the Portuguese never slackened and the Indians' defence went through a gruelling period before Ramzan reduced the lead. Almost immediately after Awtar Singh sent Sousa away on the wing and his centre was deflected into the net by Pintos.

On Friday Macao, playing only 10 men for two-thirds of the game, held the H.K.S.R.A. to a goalless draw.

ENGINEERS WIN

Volunteer Signallers Lose By Odd Goal

In a friendly hockey game yesterday the Volunteer Signallers' hockey team lost to the Royal Engineers by the odd goal in five after being on level terms at the interval.

Walker and Darby were the outstanding R. E. players, while Chowdhury and Jagjot Singh were the pick of the losers.

Walker (2) and Darby scored for the Sappers, while Chowdhury obtained both goals for the Volunteers.

LADIES' INTERPORT HOCKEY TEAM INCOMPLETE

Mrs. M. White Unable To Make Trip North

Mrs. M. White, the selected ladies' Interport hockey centre-forward, is unable to travel to Shanghai owing to unavoidable circumstances.

In view of this unexpected setback Miss P. Gittins, the reserve forward, will be brought into the side, although her position in the forward line has not yet definitely been decided. Another reserve forward will now be selected, probably at to-day's Interport practice at King's Park.

H.K. LADIES SCORE SIX GOALS

Mrs. Harrop Riddles C.B.A. Defence

Playing at King's Park yesterday the Hong Kong Ladies beat a disorganised C.B.A. team by six goals to nil, four of which came from the stick of Mrs. P. M. Harrop, in their Brawn Cup encounter.

The Hong Kong Ladies did most of the attacking during the first half, and walked through the C.B.A. defence to net five goals. After the interval the losers improved considerably, Miss O. Peters and Miss G. Lakeman being featured in several clever passing bouts.

Miss B. Hirst played a lone defensive hand at left-back, and had it not been for her spirited display the score against the C.B.A. might have been much greater.

Miss V. Blackburn, on the winners' left wing, was outstanding, her centring being particularly noteworthy. Miss B. Hance, in the pivotal position, combined extremely well with her forwards, while Miss G. Swan, the left-back, gave a very improved display.

Miss Gordon-Smith opened the score in the first few minutes of the game and goals followed from Miss R. Smalley, Mrs. P. M. Harrop (4).

H. K. Ladies:—Miss S. Baskett, Miss E. Strahan and Miss G. Swan; Mrs. Bennett, Miss B. Hance and Miss M. Sleep; Mrs. Davis, Miss Gordon-Smith, Mrs. P. M. Harrop, Miss R. Smalley and Miss V. Blackburn. C.B.A. Ladies:—Miss M. Adams; Miss M. McAlpine and Miss B. Hirst; Miss I. Buchanan, Miss B. Moss and Miss G. MacNider; Miss B. Bone, Miss G. Lakeman, Miss O. Peters, Miss E. Woolley and Miss R. Summers.

LADIES' INTERPORT HOCKEY PRACTICE

Reshuffle In Forward Line Expected

MRS. WHITE DROPS OUT OF SELECTED SIDE

The Ladies' Interport Hockey team will be seen together for the first time this morning when they will oppose a Rest of the Colony side in a practice match on the Club ground at King's Park, commencing at 10.45 a.m.

Owing to the fact that Mrs. White is unable to go to Shanghai, it is quite probable that Miss M. Smith will assume the leadership of the attack this morning, allowing Miss P. Gittins, the reserve-forward, to move over to the right-wing. Mrs. White will fill the position of leader in the Rest team.

Another reserve-forward will now have to be selected. The following are this morning's teams:—

Interport XI:—Mrs. J. Lanson (H. K.); Miss E. M. Gray (H.K.); and Miss A. Fowler ("Y"); Miss J. Wong (St. Andrew's), Miss M. Bryson (C.B.A.) and Mrs. M. Bell (H. K.); Miss P. Gittins (St. Andrew's), Miss S. Dalziel ("Y"), Miss M. Smith (C.B.A.), Miss J. Adey ("Y") and Miss M. Westcott ("Y").

The Rest:—Mrs. Rose (St. Andrew's); Miss I. Woolley (C.B.A.) and Miss J. Smalley (H.K.); Mrs. Brown, ("Y") Miss E. Thomson ("Y") and Mrs. Henry ("Y"); Miss O. Dalziel ("Y"), Miss J. Dalziel (H.K.), Mrs. White (C.B.A.), Miss A. Alves (Recreio) and A. N. Other.

C.B.A. TOO GOOD FOR RECREIO

Miss Smith Scores Two Of Four Goals

The C.B.A. Ladies scored an easy victory over the Recreio Ladies in their Caer Clark Cup fixture at Prince Edward Road yesterday, winning by four goals to nil.

Miss M. Smith opened the score for the C.B.A., and this goal was followed by others by Mrs. White, Miss Smith and Miss Doris Hunt. Shortly before the final whistle a powerful hit by Miss Miss Smith, who gave an excellent display, struck Miss Barris in the Recreio goal, forcing her to retire for a few minutes.

LANEFORD TROPHY

SOLDIERS DESERVE VICTORY

CLUB BACKS' HANDLING VERY POOR

PREECE AND FLOYD PROMINENT

FINE passing by the backs and excellent backing-up by the forwards were yesterday responsible for the Army beating the Club by a goal and two tries (11 points) to a dropped goal (4 points) in the Triangular Rugby Tournament to secure the trophy for the first time in over four seasons, the last occasion being in 1931, when a triple tie resulted.

In direct contrast to the Army display, the Club backs presented a pitiful sight in their handling, which was poor in the extreme, while the forwards were seldom backed up in the loose. Long forward punts were all too numerous and throughout the game the civilians adopted the wrong tactics.

Probably the outstanding feature of the game was supplied by Preece, the Army full-back, who gave a splendid performance, his touch-finding and defence being superb. He very rarely wasted a ball and time and again gave the Army a big advantage with kicks that gained 45 to 50 yards.

Floyd, the Army fly-half, was at the top of his form and supplied the majority of the openings.

McGilchrist very rarely received a good pass from Wilson, while the same could be said of Munro, although there were occasions when "Tiny" was given possession, only to find him too slow off the mark.

One of the most glaring errors on the part of the Club backs was their inability to draw their man before passing, and the Club very rarely made ground unless through a punt to touch.

"Robby" Disappoints

Robertson gave his second disappointing display of the season, fielding the ball very poorly. There were occasions when he should have gathered before a bounce, but preferred to wait—with disastrous results. Hutchison, playing inside to Munro, also experienced an off day.

Bonnar and Butcher worked well together, although the former was often smothered before he could send his fly-half away. This, however, was no fault of his, Hamilton being off-side nine times out of ten.

With the exception of Walkden and Gannell, the rest of the Club pack were completely out of the picture, Chambers looking very badly and, in spite of the 3-4-1 scrummage, the ball was very rarely heeled during the opening half.

Splendid Army Backs

The Army backs were a splendid combination, Hutchison and Rice-Evans providing their wing-thrusters with innumerable chances, although over-egerness robbed them of several openings.

Hamilton played his usual sterling game at the base of the scrum, but over-egerness again found him often in an off-side position, and it was left to Floyd to be the biggest thorn in the Club defence.

It would be difficult to single out any individual Army forward for special mention as all played well, although Chaney and Harrison were often caught on the wrong side of the loose scrums.

The Club opened with a rush, and inside of five minutes Butcher opened the scoring with a fine dropped-goal from 80 yards.

Army Go Ahead

The Army then pressed and went ahead as the result of a fine try by Rice-Evans, who was featured in a thrilling passing bout with Withers, the latter passing when over the line, and just about to be tackled, for Rice-Evans to score. Gillespie added the points with a fine kick from a difficult angle.

The Club were pressing for most of the second half, but the Army broke away for Floyd to cut through in brilliant style to score between the posts: Gillespie, however, failed to convert!

Just before the end, when the Club were trying desperately hard to equalise, Jones went over for an unconverted try to place the issue beyond doubt.

Army:—Preece (Fulliers); Jones (Fulliers), Hutchison (R.A.), Lt. Rice-Evans (Fulliers) and Lt. Withers (R.A.); Floyd (Fulliers) and Lt. Hamilton (R.E.); Hall (R.A.), Lt. Herbert (R.A.), Wright (R.A.), Collman (R.E.), Chaney (Fulliers), Morgan (Fulliers), Capt. Gillespie (R.E.) and Harrison (R.E.).

Club:—L. G. Robertson; H. R. McGilchrist; P. Wilson; K. J. Hutchison and K. A. Munro; A. H. R. Butcher and J. L. Bonnar; J. H. McEnley, G.

KENT BEAT CLUB IN "A" MATCH

Sowman Outstanding Player On Field

A very fast Rugby game was seen on the Club ground yesterday when H.M.S. Kent beat the Club "A" fifteen by two tries (6 points) to a try (3 points), splendid forward play by the Naval pack featuring the clash.

Sowman was again head and shoulders above everyone else; it was through his leadership that the Kent held sway over the Club during most of the second half of the game.

Hunting, the Navy back, played a very fine game and with Sattersley was the pick of the Navy backs, while Seathard was the pick of the halves on view.

Coppin, Fielden and Stoker were the pick of the Club pack, but poor backing-up, an old failure of the "A" fifteen, again let them down.

The Navy scored an unconverted try in the first half through Woodman, and in the second half went further ahead through Harris, the kick again falling just before the end the Club scored through Black, Frost falling with the kick.

SUNDAY CRICKET LEAGUE

I.R.C. Tournament Starts To-day

The Sunday Cricket League, run by the Indian Recreation Club for its members, opens to-day when the "Stoics" and "Stragglers" meet in the first match of the season. Five teams have entered for the competition this year, the other three being the Bohras, Malays and "Shocks."

These matches are played in the mornings, commencing at 9 a.m. with 1 p.m. as the time for the "close of play."

The I. R. C. Sunday League has been in existence for some years now. It is of interest to note that Messrs. Harry Wicking and Co. have donated a shield for competition.

Graduates' Match

After an absence of several weeks from the cricket field, the University Graduates' Association team will be seen in action again to-day when they meet the Royal Navy at King's Park, commencing at 2 p.m.

S. Chambers, A. F. Walkden, J. S. Cunneen, W. E. Poors; F. J. McGugan, W. F. Humphreys and E. B. Gannell.

Among the large gathering present were His Excellency the Governor, Sir Andrew Caldecott, His Excellency the G.O.C., Major-General A. W. Bartholomew, the Hon. Colonel Secretary, Sir Thomas Southern, and Lady Southern, and Mr. and Mrs. V. M. Grayburn.

"FIXED TRUSTS" IN BRITAIN

Legislation Advised

STOCK EXCHANGE COMMITTEE ISSUES INTERIM REPORT

London, Yesterday.
The Stock Exchange sub-committee which has been considering for some time the growth of the "Fixed Trust" movement, in which, it is estimated, more than £40,000,000 is now invested in Great Britain, has issued its interim report.

Realising that the growth is the result of a "genuine public demand for a means by which the comparatively small investor may enter the slightly speculative but clearly defined field of investment with the benefits of a spread risk," the committee finds that the public interest demands that the authoritative establishment of standards to safeguard the public and advises legislation for this purpose.

The Committee has drafted comprehensive regulations covering the form of trust deeds, the certificates issued to investors, the rules of management and other matters which are designed to remove the dangers which, the committee foresees, might result from the uncontrolled development of the movement under the influence of competition.—British Wireless Service.

Agricultural Show

by the kindness of the Government, where we hope soon to have a building of our own and receive young men as students from the villages for training in soil examination, seed testing, and the use of fertilisers, as well as the introduction of, or experimentation with, new types of vegetables and fruits.

Insect Pests

"It is hoped that the young men will also receive instruction in methods of dealing with insect pests which are said to eat half the crops in China. If the loss can be reduced by one half it should cause the people to be much better off for food than they are at present.

"Two perennial subjects are water and fertilisers. Any advice and help in increasing the water supply will prove of immense value to New Territory agriculturists, who are said to lose hundreds of thousands of dollars in the dry seasons. If we could provide more water for farming purposes we might well improve the conditions of life all through the Territory, though these are some places where the people seem to have enough water. A sub-committee has this important topic under consideration.

"It is stated that if we could get supplies of manure and refuse on to the New Territory the land would become extremely fertile. This subject has been discussed frequently, but so far no workable method for securing this desirable object has been produced. It would probably cost a much larger sum than we can secure at present.

Mr. Braga's Help

"We are grateful to the Hon. Mr. J. P. Braga for his efforts to secure sales of local products at Kowloon, but so far nothing tangible has eventuated. No doubt some day fresh and succulent vegetables and fresh eggs will be sold in the place now designated by Mr. Braga. Co-operative schemes may be brought forward in Hong Kong, but the New Territory villagers do not yet seem ready for such a scheme.

Poultry farming is on the increase, but unfortunately disease attacks the fowls from time to time, and this appears to be one of the times. If this type of disease could be studied and remedied found, it would be a great boon to the people.

"We cannot close without referring to Sir Robert and Lady Ho Tung, who have done so much for us in the past and to whom we look for advice and help in the future. Lady Ho Tung yearly presents a very fine show of local products without competing for prizes. This earns our constant gratitude. Other large farmers also show their products freely, and to them our thanks are due.

"While progress seems slow, it is necessary to be patient and wait for the results of persevering and patient labour and service."

Replying to the Reverend H. R. Wells' invitation, Mr. Lawrence Kadoorie addressed the audience as follows:—

"I thank you for your invitation to open this show which I believe, the ninth show which you have held year after year in uninterrupted succession.

"Your promoters as well as exhibitors and patrons are to be congratulated upon the recurring annual success of this excellent display of the vegetable produce of the New Territories.

"This annual Agricultural show, held under the auspices of your Association, cannot fail to bring material benefit to the farmers of these Territories and to consumers of your large and improving variety of produce.

"It is gratifying to feel that your Association has long ago come to be regarded as a permanent institution of the New Territories.

Government Support

"Practical support from the Government of this Colony in the grant of the use of a piece of ground approximating five acres in area, is welcome evidence that your efforts are appreciated by those in authority. We have heard from your Chairman that the land leased to you is to be used not only for the growing of vegetables, for which you find a ready market in Hong Kong and Kowloon, but also for experimental purposes, where different soils, seeds and fertilisers may be tested, with a view to general and beneficial adoption.

"For some time past your Association's instructional assistant has given seeds to farmers willing to use them under his guidance, and also a large number of visits have been paid to schools where the young students grow vegetables under his direction.

After having sung with the Metropolitan opera company for 27 seasons, Madame Maria Savigne, aged 72, is beginning a new career. She is at present the world's oldest chorus girl.

clation's instructional assistant has given seeds to farmers willing to use them under his guidance, and also a large number of visits have been paid to schools where the young students grow vegetables under his direction.

"It is most unfortunate that last year your crops were attacked by insect pests. I understand that experiments are being made with a view to the destruction of these pests, and am confident enough to think that in the Government of this Colony, which takes a very real and kindly interest in the development of the New Territories, especially in the direction of its agricultural industries, you will find the technical assistance you need in all matters relating to the protection and the growing of the crops on which your livelihood depends.

Building Sub-Committee

"It is pleasing to be informed that you have formed a building sub-committee to go into the question of planning and erecting suitable headquarters for the work of the Association and for the resort to social and business intercourse of its farmer members.

"From a monetary point of view, such a building would be the means of saving hundreds of dollars yearly now spent for the erection of a makeshift similar to that in which your exhibits are housed this afternoon.

"That your Committee should meet with complete success and that the erection of a suitable building for the Association will become an accomplished fact, before very long is, I feel sure, the earnest hope and wish of all those who have watched the founding, growth and development of your Association with the interest which it certainly deserves.

Support Expected

"There are those amongst the leading residents of this Colony whose interests in the New Territories are very real and extensive, and it is to be expected that they will assist in the laudable project you have before you.

"I have heard it stated that the recent Governor of the Colony was very keen on co-operation amongst the farmers, land-owners and village elders of these New Territories.

"Although Sir William Peel is no longer with us, I feel confident that in the councils of the Government of this Colony there will be found not a few who realise the possibilities of achievements through co-operation, exerted in the direction of encouraging the productive capability of these mainland dependencies of Hong Kong.

"It will not be long, I hope, before our new Governor, who has come here from Singapore with a great reputation for the interest he exhibits in all that concerns the people of the Colony under his administration, will take up once again this question of co-operation, and it is my very sincere wish that you will then lend all the resources within your power to make of this co-operation a real and tangible asset for the benefit of those by whom it is most needed.

School Started

"It is gratifying to learn from Mr. Wells that an agricultural school has been started, true, in a small way, but as it is being conducted under influential auspices, I shall hope for every success in its endeavours to foster the interests of farmers in educational work.

"It is very satisfactory indeed to learn that the project of a market for New Territories produce is receiving the attention this practical suggestion deserves. There is

WINDSOR ROYAL GARDENS UNDER THAMES FLOODS

Hopes Of Week-End Abatement

PEAK THOUGHT TO HAVE BEEN REACHED

London, Yesterday. There is a good prospect of a relatively dry week-end throughout Britain to allow the floods to subside. The waters further receded in the upper reaches of the Thames yesterday and it is believed that the flooding of the river generally reached its peak last night. A general abatement may now be looked for.

Below Windsor the floods spread yesterday and the greater part of the private grounds of Windsor Castle adjoining the river was under water last night. Saint Peter's Church in Old Windsor was flooded and to-morrow's services are being held in the Mission Church nearby. Many roads in the lower Thames Valley were still under water this morning.—British Wireless Service.

no doubt that a market such as has been proposed would be profitable to all concerned.

"At least once a week I drive round the New Territories, lingering pleasantly in some of the beautiful spots with which nature has endowed them. Being, therefore, a regular visitor, I find myself in a good position to realise to what extent you have contributed to the developments that are to be seen.

Many Developments

"When I speak of developments, I do not mean the large number of houses that have been constructed in the more important districts of Tai-po, Fanling, Sheung Shui, Un Long and Castle Peak, but those larger establishments devoting themselves to agricultural pursuits.

"The rearing of a very fine strain of poultry has now become an important feature. There are now in these Territories farms organised on a scientific basis, with thousands of birds, that are looked after with scrupulous care and not a little expense. These farms have now come to be regarded as a valuable asset to the Colony. They provide new-laid eggs of an unimpeachable quality which are in good demand.

"Unfortunately poultry farmers have had the misfortune recently of losing large numbers of expensive birds. It is to be hoped that, with expert advice, the difficulties that have been met with will be overcome, and that poultry-rearing may develop into an important feature of the Association's work.

Special Prize

"When the annual agricultural show was inaugurated, your first patron, Sir Cecil Clementi, G.C.M.G., presented a prize in the shape of a Chinese tablet to be won by the District securing the largest number of prizes for their exhibits. The prize was tenable for one year and, under certain conditions, could be won outright in five years. The tablet was to be exhibited in the ancestral hall of the District securing the highest award.

"Sir Cecil Clementi's prize has now been won outright; so to preserve the continuity of this award my father, Sir Elly Kadoorie, K.B.E., has offered a similar prize, with conditions for competition identical with those laid down by the former distinguished donor.

"Sir Elly Kadoorie has also, to encourage the farmers, offered three prizes of small money values, coupled with gifts of vegetable seeds, with a view to their being utilised for growing better and more varieties of vegetables in future.

Special Exhibit

"I should also like to mention that during the past two years, Lady Ho Tung has made a special exhibit of many products, not for competition, but more for the education of local farmers, so that they may see the possibilities of local production.

"Farmers of the New Territories are an enterprise that is deserving of every support, and I trust that the interest which this annual show arouses in the Colony will be continued, fostered and further developed.

"The New Territories will, I hope, in the near future provide the Colony with a good supply of vegetables, as well as eggs and poultry. That this produce will be appreciated by our fellow citizens is certain, and I am confident that you may rely on them for their

WELL-KNOWN PRIEST IN HONG KONG

To Broadcast From Local Station To-day

ASSOCIATED WITH COLONY IN 1920

The Rev. Robert J. Cairns, of the Maryknoll Fathers, has arrived in the Colony to spend a week of spiritual exercises at Stanley. For two years and more the Pastor of Suncion Island has not been in Hong Kong and so has not yet seen the new Maryknoll House at Stanley.

He is staying these few days at the Roman Catholic Cathedral Rectory, No. 16 Calne Road, where he arrived from Suncion Island, by way of Canton yesterday. He is to broadcast from Z.B.W. to-night. The Postmaster-General, Mr. M. J. Broon, Chairman of the Hong Kong Broadcasting Committee, accompanied Father Cairns to the broadcasting studio yesterday and arranged the details of the broadcast, the subject of which is: "Saint Francis Xavier and Suncion Island."

Well-Known Locally

Father Cairns is well known in Hong Kong, where he acted as the first Maryknoll Procurator in 1920. At that time he was a member of the Kowloon Residents' Association and the Kowloon Cricket Club. Born in Scotland, he is a life member of the Hong Kong St. Andrew's Society.

During his 15 years in China, Father Cairns has made many friends in Hong Kong.

MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

His reference to the end of "diplomatic" evoked loud cheers and his denunciation of the money-changers were cheered to the echo. His assertion that the control of the Federal Government had returned to the city of Washington was followed by over a minute's cheering.

On the other hand his references to the policy of neutrality were only mildly applauded. Washington comments on that passage ranged from "wonderful, courageous, aggressive" from one Democratic Party Senator to "cheap political claptrap" from a Republican Senator.

The first reactions in New York financial quarters is reassurance gained from his speech, particularly from the absence of any new legislation proposals, which is taken to indicate the expansion of the breathing spell.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

U.S. PRESS COMMENTS

New York: With such headlines as "Roosevelt raves at big business" the opposition press castigates the speech as theatrical electioneering.

The New York Herald Tribune writes of the "sharp contrast between devotion to peace abroad and incitement to hatred at home: the smiling President is replaced by a bitter one who omits no appeal to prejudice, selfishness and passion in his efforts to stave off defeat."

TUMULTUOUS APPLAUSE

Washington, earlier: Prolonged and tumultuous applause, chiefly from the Democratic majority, greeted President Roosevelt when he entered the chamber to deliver his annual address to Congress. The House was filled with Representatives and Senators and the galleries were packed, recalling the stirring sessions of the war days. Virtually the whole of the nation settled down beside their wireless sets in order to hear the address, the broadcast necessitating the cancellation of many commercial programmes.

A Geneva message states that diplomats and League officials sat up till four o'clock in the morning in order to hear President Roosevelt's speech, in view of its possible vital effect on future sanctions. Theoretically what the League has to do about sanctions does not concern the United States, but practically the League supporters got their anticipated lead from President Roosevelt.

The opinion is expressed that if Mr. Roosevelt's proposals are approved by Congress the League will be a lot nearer voting the oil embargo, both by reason of the example set and because the normal United States supply of oil to Italy, which would be left untouched, would not suffice to fulfil Italy's normal needs.—Reuter.

Parks Plays Chanceless Innings For 201

Invercargill, Yesterday.

Playing in a two-day game here to-day, the M.C.C. scored 489, Harry Parks playing a chanceless innings for 201, scored in 284 minutes. He scored freely all round the wicket, hitting three sixes and 19 boundaries.

E. R. T. Holmes, the skipper, scored 100 in 75 minutes, hitting four sixes and 12 boundaries in a "chancy" innings.

James Langridge, who scored 118, hit a six and 12 boundaries, while McGowan (5 for 98) was the most successful bowler.

Southland had not opened their score and had not lost a wicket before stumps were drawn.—Reuter.

TEST CAPTAINS DISAGREE

BUT UMPIRES COME TO DECISION

Capetown, Yesterday.

Torrential rain delayed the start of the third Test match yesterday (second day) until 2.45 p.m. The Australian captain wanted to start at 2 o'clock, but the South African captain disagreed and said they could not be expected to bat on a sticky pitch which, if adequately covered, would have been as plumb as that for the Australian on the previous day. The umpires were called in and decided that the pitch would be playable by 2.45 p.m.

Australia: 362 for 8 declared (J. H. Fingleton 121, W. A. Brown 112; R. J. Cripp 1 for 30, A. B. C. Langton 1 for 94, Robertson 2 for 75; X. Balakrishna 4 for 128).

South Africa: 102 (A. D. Nourse 44, C. V. Grimmett 5 for 32, I. Flettwood-Smith 2 for 21, S. J. McCabe 1 for 9, W. J. O'Reilly 1 for 24) and 11 for 0.

Australia's Win. Later: South Africa were dismissed for 182 (I. J. Stedie 59, C. V. Grimmett 5 for 58, W. J. O'Reilly 4 for 35) Australia winning by an innings and 78 runs.—Reuter.

CHINESE IDEAS ON THE HEART

SEAT OF ALL EMOTIONS AND PASSIONS

THE MIND REGARDED AS THE "EYES OF THE HEART"

(By PHYLLIS JUBY)

CHINESE ancients and moderns alike have been wont to represent the passions, feelings and affections of all kinds as allied with the heart. Almost all the graphic signs denoting such emotions contain the pictographic character for heart, adjoined as prefix or suffix. It is even the only character among all those representing internal organs which has a place in the written language as a fundamental character or radical. Probably, in very ancient times, when the Chinese first began to depict ideas, the heart was the only internal organ which had hitherto been an object of their thoughts.

Mental Powers

It is usual, too, for the Chinese to regard the mental powers as seated in the heart. The heart is the prince of the body, they say; thoughts proceed from it. Or the mind is regarded as the eyes of the heart. "The eyes of your heart are blocked up," a Chinese will say, meaning to tell you, of course, that you are stupid.

By extension, then, the radical heart is symbolic for mind and the mental states. The character for to think, or to wish, is composed of the radical heart, combined with the ideograph for the skull, cranium or fontanelle. This character was a primitive pictograph of the skull, representing the top view. It often appears as representing the head in general, the brain and thought. Hence thought is the result of the head and the heart working together. Another ingenious character for thought combines the radical heart with the character for sound or speech. "There is an agreement between the tongue and the heart," says an old Chinese work. Such characters as those for a flow of spirits, cheerful, mysterious, to bear patiently, ashamed, to consider or to reflect, all contain the radical heart representing a mental state.

Mencius' Teaching

Mencius declared the heart to be the seat of those constant matters of which the natural character is composed. "The sensation of the heart at the pain and distress of others is the fundamental principle of benevolence; its feeling of shame and dislike is the principle of righteousness; its sentiment of compliance and complaisance, the principle of rites and ceremony; and its feeling of what is right or wrong is the principle of knowledge." The Sung scholars, the greatest in Chinese history, had similar ideas. "The natural character is the principle of the heart, the passions are the motions of the character, and so the heart is the ruler of the character and the passions. What we call heart is that which governs the character and the passions; this means that when the heart is unmoved, the principles of benevolence, righteousness, ceremony, and knowledge together are present in it, but the parts of it which are moved form the passions." "Waving the heart's banner" is just another way the Chinese have of saying that the animal passions are aroused. These ideas we find amply illustrated in the written characters.

"Heart" As Radical There is, for instance, the character for pleasure, joy, harmonious. In this, the radical heart is combined with the ideograph for the mouth and exhaled breath, i.e. the exulting of the heart: for, in this case, the breath is represented by a curved line which the Chinese have always associated with song, joy, and things of an artistic nature. The character for alarmed, agitated, is formed of the radical heart and the character for lattice-work. The Shao Wan Dictionary says that the character for lattice-work is ideographic for confusion: hence alarm is born of the heart in confusion. The character for to hate, evil, bad, is made up of the radical heart and the character for deformity. So evil and the sentiments of repulsion which it causes

CONTRACT BRIDGE

IMPORTANCE OF DISCIPLINE

(By Lieut.-Col. H. M. BEASLEY)

WHEN I was playing recently in an international tournament at Brussels, I received an excellent lesson in defensive tactics which might easily lead to disaster.

This lesson impressed upon me one of the essential principles of Contract—the Principle of Subordination and Discipline.

At Contract you have a partner. You must act in unison, but if it is evident that one of you is in control of a situation, then it is essential that the other one should act as subordinate, and carry out to the best of his ability the instructions which may have been given. I refer now to the following situation:—

(1) The declarer makes an open-bid of one in a suit.

(2) The next to speak, doubles.

(3) Passes.

(4) Is now in the position of a subordinate and should act in accordance with the instructions given by No. 2. The point we have now to discuss is: What is No. 4's best line of action?

Success or failure of the hand depends to a great extent on the solution of this problem. If No. 4 has some obvious response the solution is easy, but if he has a very weak hand, the solution is not so simple.

There are two responses which are commonly employed to indicate the holding of a weak hand.

(a) Two Clubs, and (b) One No Trump.

Personally, I am in favour of the One No Trump response when you find yourself in this unfortunate position. However, if I can possibly avoid this call I do so in the following manner:—

come from a deformation of the heart. The character for peace is an interesting ideograph. It is composed of the character for assurance and the radical heart. The character for assurance is, in its turn, a combination of that for to receive from above, and to work. Chinese assurance is gained from hard work and faith in the gods, and once assurance comes into the heart, then there is peace.

Seat of Vitality

So philosophy gave to the heart the actual seat of all the vital spirits, the central place among the five viscera; a place corresponding with the South or the region of warmth and life. "Why is the heart considered to be ceremony and rites? It is so because this organ consists of the operative energy of the element Fire. In the South (the region assimilated with Fire) the estimable Yang has the upper hand, while the less estimable Yin underlies there, and in ceremonial and rites, likewise, the difference is kept in view between those of high rank and those of low rank. Because the heart thus represents Fire, its colour is red. It is pointed; for indeed man entertains veneration for the Way of Nature, and so his heart is pointed beneath because Heaven is above him."

Because the soul's substance is deemed to be concentrated in the heart, the heart is an important factor in "soul-disease." Uneasiness of the heart may cause the thoughts to wound the soul, and while fright or fear are present in the heart the evil influences have free scope to injure the viscera. Physically, according to the "Golden Mirror," the heart regulates the blood vessels, beautifies the complexion, and by its means we are enabled to open the ears and move the tongue."

If I hold four cards of a suit which is of a higher denomination than the one which my partner has doubled, I bid one in that suit. You will, however, on occasions, be confronted with a hand where your best suit is the one which your partner has already doubled. If this is the case what should you do—bid One No Trump, or leave the double and pass?

I was confronted with this situation last week. The opening bid was One Heart—my partner doubled—No. 3 passed—and I, No. 4, held the following hand:—

S—J 9 4 3
H—K 9 8 6 4
D—8 6
C—7 4

With this hand I have three choices:—

- (a) Bid One Spade;
- (b) Bid One No Trump; or
- (c) Pass.

I elected to pass, thinking that as I had five trumps, we should collect a good penalty. In adopting this line of action I contravened the principle of subordination. I should have acted under the instructions given me by my partner, and bid One Spade, relying on him entirely to take control of the situation.

The result was disastrous for us. The opponents incurred a penalty of one trick only, whereas we missed a certain game in Spades. My partner's hand was as follows:—

S—K Q 10 8 6
H—7
D—A K 9
C—A Q 5 3

A response of One No Trump on my hand might have given my partner the impression that the hand was valueless, but this first impression, even though it is inaccurate, cannot lead to any trouble. If your partner has doubled an original bid of One Heart, he must be prepared for a One No Trump response, and, of course, holds a hand on which he can make some safe takeout bid.

The principle of subordination applies with equal force in situations where you hold quite a good hand of which you can reply to your partner's double of an opening bid. You must immediately inform him of the fact that you have a good hand and not leave him guessing.

For example, suppose the opening bid is One Diamond, your partner doubles, and you hold the following hand:—

S—10 9 7
H—A Q 9 6 4
D—8 6
C—Q J 9

You should bid Two Hearts and not One. If this declaration fits in with your partner's hand, so much the better.

If your partner's hand contains strength in Spades, you have three Trumps and Hearts and Clubs as side suits with which to support him.

Here is one more example—where the strong suit is a minor and not a major—the same situation—the opening bid is One Diamond—your partner doubles—and you hold the following hand:—

S—Q J 8 6
H—10 4
D—8 6
C—A Q 9 8 4

With this hand I would prefer to respond with One Spade and not Two Clubs.

MOTING NOTES

FORD V-8 ENTERS AVIATION FIELD

Slight Alterations In Engine

ECONOMICAL POWER-PLANT FOR SMALL PLANES

The Ford V-8 engine, converted for aviation by the Arrow Aircraft and Motors Corporation of Lincoln, Nebraska, has been issued Approved Type Certificate No. 161 by the U.S. Bureau of Air Commerce. This crowns two years of intensive research and experiment by the Nebraska company, and marks the beginning of an era in the manufacture of small aeroplanes.

The aviation industry has been striving for many years to develop a small plane with low initial, operating and maintenance costs, but giving standard performance. Excessive initial cost of aviation power-plants and the prohibitive maintenance aspect have heretofore defeated this aim.

First To Qualify

Aircraft manufacturers have looked to the automobile engine also for many years as the logical means of providing economical power for small planes, along with giving the aeroplane maker the benefits of mass production and extensive service facilities on that most essential unit of the aeroplane—the power-plant. The Arrow converted Ford V-8 motor is the first such power-plant, developing 80 or more horsepower (so as to insure standard performance of the plane), to receive the Federal Approved Type Certificate.

The advantages to be obtained in using a motor so easily available and handily serviced as the V-8 in an aeroplane are obvious. Heretofore the power plant in the average small plane has constituted more than 60 per cent. of the total plane cost. In the Arrow Ford V-8, it accounts for less than 20 per cent. of the total.

The V-8 engine as converted for aviation by the Arrow Company differs from the standard automobile power-plant in only a few simple but vital phases. Reduction gears have replaced the fly-wheel, so as to turn the propeller at a cruising speed of 1,500 revolutions per minute. This gives the plane a cruising speed of approximately 100 miles per hour with the motor turning over at the rate of a ground speed of about 60 miles per hour in the automobile.

Weight Reduced

The radiator is redesigned to concur with the streamline cowling of the ship, and one large pump-replaces the two regulation pumps. To reduce weight, an aluminum crankcase and smaller generator are used. Incidentally, the oil lines are all cast within the cylinder block, thus doing away with one of aviation's most troublesome and dangerous problems—the broken oil line.

As an indication of how this new aviation power-plant will affect the fields of private flying and student instruction, valves which cost from U.S.$3 to $5 for the average small plane motor will cost the Arrow Ford V-8 owner only 25 cents, and so on down the line. In place of a $55 magneto—an $8 battery is used.

LOCAL SPORTS JOTTINGS By A. E. L.

Carruthers Turns To Cricket

G. CARRUTHERS, who was tennis secretary for the Police Recreation Club last year, has taken to cricket seriously. He turns out regularly for them in league matches and is quite a useful change bowler.

Helmley Out of It

T. HELMSLEY of the Police Force, now stationed at Shanghai, was an excellent sprinter when at school. He has not had much opportunity of indulging in athletics since his arrival here, and though he used to play cricket for the Police, he has had to give that up owing to pressure of business.

Goal-keeper As Wicket-keeper

W. E. CLARKE, the former Inter-Port and Police goal-keeper, has now given up football. He is, however, turning out for the Police at cricket and is quite useful as a wicket-keeper.

Gutterres Out of Luck

OWING to the fact that his office hours do not permit him to practice, L. J. Gutterres, the former Recreational wicket-keeper, has had to give up cricket. It is a great pity, as he was also one of the best batsmen as well.

Tennis Pioneer Still Active

WONG PO-KEUNG, the winner of the Hong Kong Open Lawn Tennis Doubles Championship with Ng Sze-kwong from 1917-19, was the founder of the first Chinese Club in Canton. In 1920 he founded the club now known as the Canton Citizens' Athletic Association, where some of the best tennis in Canton to-day is seen. Wong himself is still playing, though he no longer participates in all the competitions.

House's Rugby Days

IT may not be generally known that H. S. House, one of the Colony's most enthusiastic yachtsmen to-day, was an excellent Rugby player formerly. He was captain of the successful Club fifteen that won the Triangular Tournament in 1913-14.

Brooks In Forward Line

BROOKS of the Police, who had his position at right-half taken by North while he was injured, has been tried at inside-left and has played several very good games in that position.

Civilian Soccer Interceptors

SINCE only three Servicemen are eligible for the soccer Inter-Port team, and as most of the outstanding Chinese players are not available, the civilian teams will have to supply most of the Inter-Porters, and it is hoped that to-day's game will assist the selectors in their task.

Delgado on Injured List

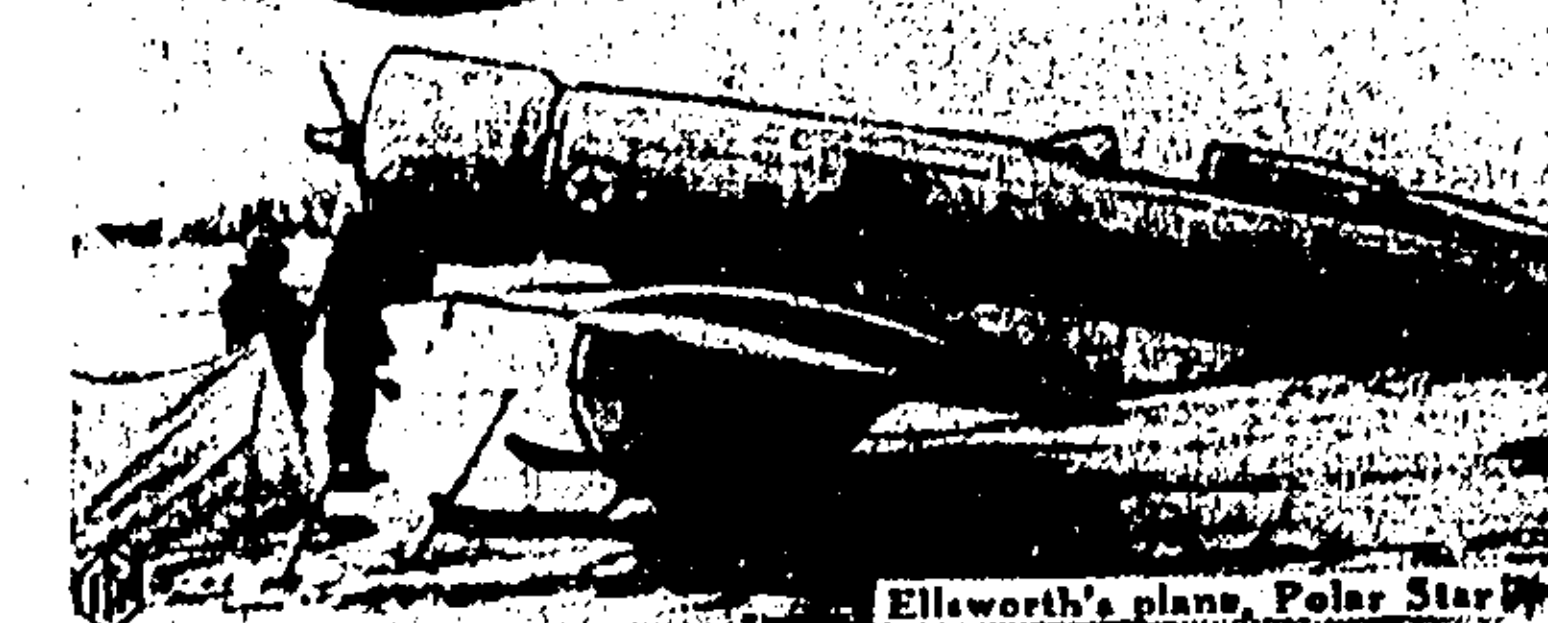

THE Recreational football team will be seriously handicapped in their League games owing to N. Delgado, one of their best players, not being able to play for some time owing to an injury received while playing for Portugal against Wales in the "Sunday Herald" Charity Cup competition recently.

Lee To Play in Interport?

IT is still doubtful whether Lee Wai-tong will be available for the soccer Inter-Port. He, however, has several points to discuss personally with the officials at Shanghai in connection with the Berlin Games and may use the trip for this purpose. Lee is fast recovering from the injury received against Scotland on Christmas Day and hopes to be playing in a fortnight's time.

Fine All-Rounder

A. E. P. GUEST is a real all-round sportsman. He now plays hockey for the Radio Sports Club, badminton for St. Andrew's and tennis for the Kowloon Cricket Club. Guest was once a good footballer, formerly playing at back for St. Joseph's and the Kowloon Football Club.

Map of polar flight. Ellsworth's plans, Polar Star.

Russell Going To Australia

W. RUSSELL, the Kowloon B.G.C. veteran, is leaving the Colony next month for a trip to Australia. It is understood, however, that he will not be away very long.

It will be remembered that he retired from business recently and left for home. The "call of the East" proved too strong, however, and he returned a few months ago.

Versatile Bowler

F. NOLAN, who played lawn bowls for the Police in the first division of the league last summer, has been a member of the team since 1928. He was one of the four that beat the Shanghai Interceptors in 1928. Prior to joining the Police he was in the East Surrey Regiment and represented them at boxing.

Police Cricket Loss

THE Police cricket team are without the services of F. E. E. Booker, who was one of their most reliable bats some years ago. Booker was also a member of the football team that won the Senior Shield for the Police in 1920. He now devotes most of his time to lawn bowls, but he still takes a very great interest in the other forms of sport, though not actively.

Penfold's Retirement

F. PENFOLD of the Water Police was a very good Ruggerite in his younger days and was also seen to advantage in the City Hall boxing tournaments. Though he no longer goes in for these forms of sport, he again came into prominence about a month ago when he dived from a ferry launch one night to save a would-be suicide.

Promising Career Stopped

ANOTHER member of the Police Force who has given up active participation in sport is T. McMahon, who played a very useful game of football in his younger days. In this case McMahon had no choice, for he was badly wounded by an armed robber some seven years ago and had to give up anything strenuous.

"Kid" Marriott In Siege

"KID" MARRIOTT, former lightweight boxing champion of the Colony, took a very prominent part in the Green Street Siege (the local Sydney Street Siege) in 1918. He brought down one of the armed robbers who was trying to make his escape, and received a gold watch as a memento of the occasion.

Donn For Singapore

A. G. DONN, former captain of swimming at the European Y.M.C.A. is being transferred to the Singapore branch of the Mercantile Bank.

Schreuder's Transfer

W. Schreuder, former captain of water-polo at the "Y," is being transferred to one of the J.C.I.L.'s offices in Java. He and Mrs. Schreuder will be missed by their host of friends in the Colony.

Musket's Rowing Prowess

W. H. B. MUSKET, the Hong Kong Electric Recreation Club and Inter-Port lawn bowler, was a very keen oarsman in his younger days. He represented the Victoria Recreation Club in the Inter-Club regatta against the Royal Hong Kong Yacht Club and the Corinthian Yacht Club, while he was also a member of the crew which won the Chairman's Challenge Cup.

Edwards Back In London

G. G. EDWARDS, son of Mr. E. G. Edwards of the Education Department, who won his Blue at Cambridge for soccer, has given up his educational position in Egypt and has now taken up an appointment in a school near London. While at the University here, "G. G." played in goal for the Hong Kong Football Club.

Ex-Head of Queen's Still Active

HIS many friends in the Colony will be interested to learn that Mr. A. H. Crook, formerly headmaster of Queen's College, and who is now living in retirement in Chislewick, still takes a very active interest in tennis. When he was in the Colony, Mr. Crook figured prominently in the H.K.C.C. tournaments, while he also played rugger in his younger days.

Annual Soccer Match

THE annual football match between the Hong Kong Stock Exchange and the Hong Kong Sharebrokers' Association for the Harriman Trophy will be played early this month. When these teams met last year the Stock Exchange won by a one-goal margin in the last minute of the game.

Having Rest From Cricket

H. G. WALLINGTON, who used to play in the forward line for the Hong Kong Football Club and who played cricket for the Civil Service Cricket Club, has now given up soccer and is also having a rest from cricket. He spends his Saturday afternoons scoring for the Hong Kong Cricket Club. Incidentally, he was Hong Kong's official scorer in the last Inter-Port.

Sloan Still Playing Bowls

J. SLOAN, the former Talkoo and J. Kowloon B.G.C. bowler, who retired about 15 months ago, has now settled down in Greenock, Scotland, and still finds time for a "throw-up."

Rink Co-operation

A. W. GRIMMITS rink (E. Tuck, T. Tallon and W. Ward) have won the Goscombe-O'Sullivan Cup for the second time. This proves the adage that cohesion in a rink is even more important than individual brilliance.

A Keeper Above The Average

S. A. R. ISMAIL is another member of that family of sportsmen who was "a wicket-keeper above the average." Unfortunately, however, he has had to give up sport for health reasons. He is a cousin of S. A. Ismail, who now "keeps" for the Indians. Incidentally, S. Ismail, a brother of "S. A.," is now making a name for himself as a stumper in Tientsin.

Hamilton's Soccer Days

I understand that A. T. Hamilton of the Education Department will soon be leaving the Colony on retirement. In his younger days Hamilton was a very good soccer player, having represented the Colony (at full-back) against Shanghai. Of recent years he has devoted most of his time to lawn bowls, turning out regularly for the Yacht Club in the League.

International Cricket

SOME years ago there was some talk of running an International Cricket Tournament (all-day matches on Sundays) but the idea was turned down as "not feasible." Since we now have International soccer and bowls, it seems a pity that we cannot have a cricket com-

WILL THE MOON BREAK UP?

Famous Astronomer's Prophecy

London: The moon is steadily nearing a "danger zone" in which it will break up into small pieces, according to a prophecy made by Sir James Jeans, the famous astronomer, in a lecture to the Royal Institute here.

"We have reason to think," he said, "that the moon, which is falling towards us, will eventually come within the 'danger zone' and break into pieces. It will first break into two pieces, then four, then eight, and eventually into countless particles, which will resemble Saturn's rings."

"We should then have continuous moonlight, but instead of the light being reflected from the moon, it will be reflected from the particles and we shall have 'rings' just like Saturn's."—Reuter.

FORD V-8 ENTERS AVIATION FIELD

In 250 hours of testing, the V-8 converted motor consumed six gallons of gasoline per hour at full throttle, and one pint of oil for every five hours. Standard type automobile gasoline and oil are used.

On a basis of 1,000 hours of flight (approximately 100,000 air miles), and including insurance coverage, fuel and oil, maintenance and repair, and full depreciation on the aeroplane, the "operating cost of the Arrow Ford V-8 is only $1.62 per passenger air hour, or about one cent per passenger air mile. This compares with approximately $6 per air hour for the most economically operated plane using the conventional aviation power-plant.

Top Speed 110 m.p.h. The Arrow Ford V-8 is a two-place low-wing monoplane of the companion cockpit type. Its top speed is tentatively announced as 110 miles per hour. Equipment includes the standard required aviation instruments, hand starter, navigation lights, dual brakes, affording individual wheel control, wing flaps, and tail wheel.

The gasoline tank holds 20 gallons, and there is a small auxiliary tank. It carries two gallons of oil.

Overall length is 21 feet 4 inches, wing span 32 feet and height from tip of propeller to the ground 8 feet 10 inches. The price is in the $1,500 field, with a promise of reduction as quantity production permits.

petition on the same lines. I feel sure that teams representing England, Scotland, Wales, Australia, India, Portugal and possibly China might be induced to take part.

All-Round Athlete

A. Bakar, who now plays cricket for the Indian Recreation Club juniors, is also an excellent all-round athlete. While at the University, he represented his hostel (Lugard Hall) at cricket, football, basketball and athletics, while he was also a member of the University athletic team that won the Inter-University (Hong Kong, Lingnan and Sun Yat Sen) title a few years ago.

Coming "Y" Ladies' Star

A LADY hockey player who has made amazing progress recently is Miss M. Gardiner, who has this season been turning out regularly for the "Y" Ladies' junior team at full-back.

Mrs. McTavish Wins

NEWS has been received in the Colony that Mrs. Hector McTavish, who was formerly a well-known lady tennis player in the Colony, latterly with the Kowloon C.C. and the Kowloon B.G.C., has won the championship of the Greenock Tennis Club, Scotland.

Mrs. McTavish, who left the Colony about three years ago, held, among other trophies, the Ladies' Championship of the Kowloon Bowling Green Club, and the Mixed Doubles Championship of the same Club, with Mr. T. Fergusson. Mr. Fergusson, by the way, returned from leave by the S. Katori Maru a week yesterday, accompanied by his wife and two children. In addition to being a useful tennis player, "Tommy," as he is known to his friends, is also a keen bowler, and plays for the Kowloon C.C. senior team. Travelling on the same ship were Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Terry, who are also well-known in sporting circles.

RED MENACE IN NORTH COMMUNISTS IN KWEICHOW FIVE COUNTIES OCCUPIED

NANKING DIVISIONS BEING MOBILISED

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday.
Five counties in Eastern Kwai-chow have been occupied by the Communists since December 31, following their escape from Hunan. It was learned here this afternoon. Four Nanking divisions are mobilising in Kwaiyang to intercept the western progress of the enemy.

It is likely that the Reds, under the command of the notorious Hsiao Keh and Ho Lung, plan to move across Kwai-chow into Yun-nan and thence to Szechuen. The five counties in Kwai-chow under their occupation were thoroughly looted, there being no Nanking troops in that vicinity.

Nanking official reports stated that Hunan troops were pursuing the Communists from the rear, but independent dispatches added that they are trailing too far behind to be of any use.

The Canton Daily Sun stated this morning that Kwangsi troops have reached Tu Shan in Southern Kwai-chow, in anticipation of a Communist invasion of that province, which is just north of Kwangsi. Crack divisions and the militia are defending Kwangsi, according to the same paper.

WEATHER REPORT

The anticyclone has increased slightly in intensity, and now covers China and the seas to the eastward, pressure being highest over the Lower Yangtze Valley. A deep depression is moving into the Pacific to the north-east of Hokkaido. East and north-east winds, fresh, cloudy, with some drizzle or mist, probably improving later, was the forecast for to-day, as issued by the Royal Observatory last evening.

Still the most difficult of all lands for white men to enter is Tibet, between India and China, and these are among the few photographs ever made in Lhasa, the "forbidden city." They were taken by Sydney Cutting and Arthur Verney, who were forced to wait five years for permission to approach the winter palace (right) of the Dalai Lama, who corresponds to the Pope among millions of Asiatics. The country has no death penalty, instead convicted murderers wear chains the rest of their lives, as shown here (left).

New Zealanders Again Beaten

"ALL BLACKS" FAIL TO SCORE AT TWICKENHAM

London, Yesterday.

A crowd of 70,000, including H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, saw England beat New Zealand by 13 points to nil, after leading 6-0 at the interval, at Twickenham this afternoon.

This was the "All Blacks" third defeat of the season and marked the first occasion on which they had failed to score.

The teams took the field as previously announced, except that Mitchell changed places with Ball in the "All Blacks" line-up. The turf was on the soft side and the weather was distinctly chilly.

England were the first to attack, the three-quarters making ground, only to be repulsed by the New Zealanders, who kicked into the England half, only to be driven back by a beautiful, left-footed kick to touch by Owen Smith, the South African Test cricketer.

Up till now the New Zealand forwards had won the majority of the scrummages, but, owing to the very fast breaking-up of the England pack, their backs were unable to make much headway.

The All Blacks, making the most of their chances, were attacking vigorously, but just when it appeared as if the game was going to develop into a series of midfield mauls, Gadeny, Candler and Gerrard were featured in a passing movement which resulted in the last mentioned sending out an ideal pass to Prince Obolensky, who made an electrifying dash to score a wonderful try.

Dunkley hit the cross-bar with his attempt at goal from an easy position.

PRINCE'S SECOND TRY
Stung by this reverse, New Zealand strove desperately to come on level terms and both forwards and backs kept England on the defence with short rushes until Cranmer, in a brilliant burst, handed off all tacklers before passing to Gerrard who transferred to Prince Obolensky, on the opposite wing, for the naturalised Englishman to race over for an unconverted try to give England a lead of six points at the interval.

BEAUTIFUL DROPPED GOAL
Soon after the resumption Cranmer swung round and dropped a beautiful goal of his left foot from 200 yards to give England a 10 points lead.

The New Zealanders now appeared to have lost their fire and played like a beaten side. The lusty England forwards crashing into their outsidies before they could move.

England took scrums instead of lineouts and were continually heeling the ball. A grand break-away by Cranmer paved the way for a try by Sever, whose 30-yard dash left the New Zealand backs standing, but Dunkley failed to convert from an easy position.

CANDLER'S FINE DEFENCE
The New Zealanders tried desperately hard to pierce a defence in which Candler was magnificent. Time and again he flung himself at the feet of the opposing forwards.

The game now hung in England's territory, the side putting everything they knew into defence. On one occasion a back a yard from his own line passed to Owen Smith, who found touch as three New Zealanders tackled him.

The defence, however, came through a gruelling ordeal with flying colours and the final whistle gave England a 13-0 triumph.—Reuter.

The following were the teams:
New Zealand:—Gilbert, Mitchell, Oliver, Tall, Casaghy, Tindill, Cornner, Lambour, Hadley, Hore, Manchester, King, Reid, McClean, and Mahoney.
England:—Owen Smith (St. Mary's Hospital), Prince Obolensky (Oxford), Cranmer (Richmond), Gerrard (Bath), Sever (Leicester), Sale (Leicester), Gadeny (Leicester), Candler (Bath's Hospital), Kendrew (Leicester), Nicholson (Leicester), Longland (Northampton), Webb (Devonport Services), Clarke (Coventry), Hamilton Hill, Dunkley (Hartlepool), and Weston (Northampton).

ENGLAND'S RUSSIAN PRINCE

Of the 15 members of the England side, three are now Internationals. Prince Obolensky, of Oxford University, and Sever and Sale, of Leicester.

There was much speculation as to whether Prince Obolensky would qualify for an England side because of his nationality, but, being a naturalised Englishman and with the necessary residential qualification, his application was unanimously passed by the International Rugby Board.

Prince Obolensky is about the swiftest moving wing-three-quarter in the game and fully justified his inclusion in the team.

He is fair-haired and looks like Lord Burghley. Though a Russian, he has lived in England for 19 years, which is a residential clause strong enough for anyone.

LOCAL INTERNATIONAL
The majority of the England side are old Internationals, among these being R.A. (Ronny) Gerrard, formerly of the Diocesan Boys' School, who, it will be recalled, would have also played for England last season had not an injury kept him out of the game.

This was his eighth "cap." P. E. Dunkley, a back-row forward, is a brother of the Colony wicket-keeper, G. S. Dunkley. He has caught the eye of the England selectors after a lapse of five years, having played against Ireland and Scotland in 1931.
